Local Britons:
The Desire to Do More

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Yesterday a news item gave a list of Dominions and Colonies where conscription has already been enforced. Yet here in Shanghai our officials still discourage British subjects from leaving their jobs. It is however rumoured that local voluntary enlistment will soon be possible. I submit that we should go further than this and positively encourage all of the right age to join now. At the same time an unofficial exemption board might be organized by the B.R.A. This would have the effect of ensuring that all firms played their part equally. Manpower is obviously of vital importance now and the more men there are serving, no matter where, the more will be available for the defence of Britain.

But it is not in regard to manpower alone that Shanghai has been laggard. British communities throughout the world have been remitting funds home in the form of taxes and free contributions for many months. We have only had a small fund for war comforts. There is now a wide-spread desire to do more. The N.C.D.N. is the obvious organization to undertake this work and to press the matter vigorously. An appeal through your columns is far more likely to be successful than circulars from associations and societies. The competitive element and examples of sacrifice which would become apparent from the publication of lists of contributors would be a valuable stimulant, as indeed has been proved elsewhere. Those who cannot afford much need not and would not worry if their conscience was clear and some would anyway wish to preserve their anonymity.

We must call for sacrifice after sacrifice and for vigour more ruthless than that of the enemy. Whatever we do let us get on with it without delay.

"Z."

St. Tichon's:
Thanks from Orphanage

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—May we through the medium of your esteemed paper express our deepest gratitude to the Shanghai public for its never failing generosity towards children and the support given to the Tag Day held on June 4th in aid of St. Tichon's Orphanage, the result of which was that a sum of $3,583.37 was collected.

Our heartiest thanks are also due to the management of the Cathay Hotel for lending a room, to all lady collectors, to the Editors of the "North China Daily News," the "Shanghai Times" and the "Shanghai Evening Post & Mercury" and to all who by this or other way helped us to make the Tag Day a success.

American Nations Agree to Meet
New World Problems to Be Debated in Session At Rio de Janeiro

Washington, June 23.

Twenty-one American Republics yesterday agreed to an emergency consultative conference on new problems in the Western Hemisphere resulting from recent developments in Europe, the Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, announced here last night.

Government sources reported the Brazilian Government has indicated a desire to hold the conference at Rio de Janeiro.

President Roosevelt's proposal for a union of American nations in an offensive against the trade methods of the Totalitarian Powers will be included in the agenda of the conference.

Mr. Hull said the exact time and place for the conference had not yet been decided definitely. The specific subjects to be placed on the agenda will be decided after further conversations with the Governments to participate in the conference, he said.

Mr. Hull said the proposal to form a Pan-American cartel is necessarily connected closely with the proposed conference. The State Department is now completing a draft of the outline of the proposal which will be submitted to the other American Governments, he said.

Some sources indicated the consultative conference might discuss only political questions connected with the cartel plan, leaving financial and economic questions to be considered by the finance ministers of the separate countries or their designated representatives. — United Press.

Lesson Sermon
First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Is the universe, including man, evolved by atomic force?: Was the subject of the Lesson Sermon read in all Churches of Christ Scientist throughout the world yesterday. Golden Text:—Ames 4.13. "Lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, The Lord, The God of hosts, is his name."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson Sermon is the following from The Bible:—"And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. They shall not build and another inhabit, they shall not plant, and another eat: for as the days of a tree are the days of my people, and mine elect shall long enjoy the work of the hands. And it shall come to pass, that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear. (Isaiah 65: 21,2,4.)

The Lesson Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook. "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:—"Our Master treated error through Mind. He never enjoined obedience to the laws of nature, if by these are meant laws of matter, nor did he use drugs. There is a law of God applicable to healing, and it is a spiritual law instead of material."

Fliers Discover Lost Town
Out of Touch With Rest Of World for Twenty-five Years in Peru Forests

Lima, Peru, June 23.

A town of 80 white families, without contact with civilization for 25 years, was discovered at the mouth of the Rio Pinquen, in the south-east corner of Peru, by a corps of Peruvian aviators recently, it was learned here last night.

The aviators found the town while plying for the Axel Wennergren expedition in the wooded mountain sections of the Madre de Dios Department.

A group of Spaniards went into these mountains hunting rubber in 1915 and did not return. The aviators said the townspeople knew that the World War had broken out in 1914, but they did not know the outcome. They knew nothing of the present European war.

All the citizens of the little village are Catholics and strict monogamists, though no formal marriage ceremony is carried out. All appeared healthy and strong, the aviators reported, and there were many children in the village. The people of the little town avidly read the newspapers the aviators gave them—their first news of the outside world since 1915.—United Press.

New N.Y.K. Liner Makes Trial Trips

Tokyo, June 23.

The Yahata Maru, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha's newest luxury liner, will make her maiden voyage on August 31, sailing from Yokohama for the United States via Vancouver, it was announced here today.

The new 17,000-ton vessel, sister ship of the Nitta Maru which recently was put on the Pacific run, was recently completed at the Mitsubishi Dockyard at Nagasaki. Yesterday, during a test run outside Nagasaki harbour, the ship developed a speed of 21 knots.—Domei.

British Women Urged To Make Munitions
To Work Two Days A Week To Learn Jobs

London, June 22.

British women were urged by the Minister of Labour, Mr. Ernest Bevin, in a radio speech tonight, to work two days weekly in munitions factories both to give the men workers a rest and to train themselves for the heavier work that they will have to undertake when the menfolk are mobilized.

Mr. Bevin suggested that conscientious objectors should be employed on farms.

In the course of his speech he asserted that among the projects afoot to assure the good health and well-being of British workers are sports competitions after work hours.—Havas.

King Farouk Confers With Ex-Premiers

Cairo, June 23.

King Farouk arrived in Cairo from Alexandria yesterday and has been in consultation with a number of former Prime Ministers, including Nahas Pasha. The King also conferred with the Premier, President of the Senate and Chamber and a number of deputies.

It is believed these talks indicate there is a possibility of the King's accepting the resignation of the Prime Minister with a view to forming a national coalition Government.

The Egyptian Minister of National Defence issued a new order to the Army.—Reuter.

The Cutty Sark, the first tea-clipper of the season from Shanghai for England, left during last night, with 1,450 tons of tea. The Serica likely to follow her tomorrow, takes about 1,000 tons. Though the Cutty Sark got an apparent start of her rival by two days, we hear she has brought up inside the bar at Woosung, which has two feet of water less than her figure. It seems therefore not unlikely that the two clippers will put out to sea abreast of each other.

Prince Konoye May Head New Japanese Party
Expected to Resign From Privy Council

Tokyo, June 23.

With the latest international developments giving impetus to the single party movement in Japan, it was believed here today that Prince Ayamaro Konoye, President of the Privy Council, will resign from his post and assume the leadership of the projected single party either tomorrow or the day after.

Prince Konoye, well-informed sources said, will take action after conferring with Marquis Koichi Kido, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal.

It is understood that persons close to Prince Konoye, such as Marquis Kido, Mr. Seihin Ikeda, and high army officers, have been urging the President of the Privy Council to resign and take up the leadership of the new party.

Whether he would resign immediately was still a matter of speculation, but it was considered certain that Prince Konoye will resign in the early part of July at the latest, following the completion of the Manchoukuo Emperor's visit to Japan. Authoritative sources predicted that Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, who once was President of the Privy Council, will succeed Prince Konoye.—Domei.

Get The Most Out Of Your Holiday!

Without a doubt you want to enjoy your holiday right from the start—but will you? Certainly not if you are run down, anaemic, troubled by digestive disorders and lack the energy to join in the bathing, tennis, dancing and other holiday recreations.

To obtain full benefit and happiness from a holiday it is well to build up your strength and vitality beforehand by means of a short course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the blood and nerve tonic which has been a friend to men and women for more than fifty years. And if you are ailing, weak, despondent, a victim to any trouble arising from impoverished blood or run down nerves begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to-day. You will surely be satisfied with the early improvement in your health. This world-famous tonic is obtainable at all chemists.

OVERHEARD BY "LISTENER"

(All times given, are local summer times)

From station "VLQ," Sydney, Australia, at their regular 9.30 p.m., news broadcast directed to India, it was announced that a radio broadcast from Moscow to the French people had been intercepted, which advised the French to fight on and that Russia would enter the war if necessary.

The B.B.C. and "Our Allies"

One matter connected with the War, if it were not so serious, might be humourous, and perhaps the B.B.C. has taken on "more than it can chew". On Sunday nights before they give the News Bulletin the B.B.C. announce "Ladies and Gentlemen, the Allies" and proceed to play the National Anthems of the Allies. In the beginning, of course, it was France and Poland, then it extended to Norway, and now we have the Dutch and Belgium anthems, as well as our own. Recently these Anthems took 7 minutes. The B.B.C. said afterwards "If we get many more invasions we'll have to have a special "National Anthem" programme.

Jamming

Our local jamming fiends have shifted their sphere of interference from local broadcasts, for the time being, to broadcasts on the 31 metre band. This greatly interferes with the following:—Hongkong, all Manila stations, including KZRH; KGEI, Treasure Island, San Francisco, and VLQ, Sydney, Australia. KZRH and VLQ, are coming in very loud at present, and in spite of the jamming, on a good set can still at most times be picked up clear enough to understand the news.

To most of our readers foreign news broadcasts are of great importance these days and the following time-table of late evening news may be of interest:—Starting with KGEI at 9.30 p.m., news and market report, then GSF 15.14 Mc/s, 19.82m, London, at 10.15 p.m., generally followed by a topical talk. VLQ, Sydney, on the 31 metre band at 10.30 p.m., followed by a talk and closes down at 10.45 p.m., when KZRH, Manila, also on the 31 metre band at 10.45, every day except Saturdays. The next news broadcast comes from London at 1 a.m., when a full news bulletin is given.

'Chatterbugs' Denounced

In a recent Ministry of Information broadcast Mr. Harold Nicolson, M.P., denounced "chatterbugs." "We are now suffering from a virulent form of the rumour-epidemic," he started. "There is the naturally nervous person who just chatters because he can't keep still. There is the club bore who discovers with delight that whereas his fellow members have long since ceased listening to his stories of shooting expeditions in Manitoba, they are agog with interest when he tells them that his brother saw last Tuesday five (or it may have been six) parachutists descend in the disguise of rural deans. There are the vain and silly people who gain a sense of self-importance by imparting sensational news. And there are quite sensible people, such as you or I, who, in our weaker moments, become chatterbugs without meaning to be chatterbugs in the least."

"Monitoring"

The picture shows one of the B.B.C. listening posts, where every item of foreign news is received and recorded. Technically called "monitoring," a 24-hour watch is maintained.

Growth of Amateur Radio

Technical Developments Due to Enterprise Of Private Enthusiasts

The development of amateur radio all over the world continues to grow every year, until today there are hundreds of thousands of devotees to the hobby. Interest in foreign short wave programmes has, of course, become of paramount importance since the commencement of the European struggle, and the amateur equipped with a modern set is capable of universal reception. His scope is not limited to receiving, either, as there are some 70,000 amateur transmitters in various countries.

The history of amateur radio is as old as the invention of wireless communication. Marconi was pleased to style himself the first amateur—although this seems strange from the man who first astounded the world by experiments proving that telegraph messages actually could be sent between distant places without wires. Amateur radio as it has come to be known was born when people realised in the new marvel a means of personal communication with others, and set about learning enough of the new art to build a homemade station.

Pre-War Radio

Pre-war amateur radio bore little resemblance to the art as it exists today, except in principle. The equipment, both transmitting and receiving, was of a type now long obsolete. "Short waves" meant 200 metres; the whole wavelength spectrum below 200 metres was silent. Years were to pass before its potentialities were to be suspected and explored. The United States saw most development in this period, a number of radio laws and wave-length specifications being brought into force. The range of amateur stations gradually increased to 500 and then a thousand miles, and finally hopes began to be voiced of the possibility of spanning the Atlantic. During the war, however, amateur radio went out of existence owing to legislation in almost all countries to prevent espionage.

After the war the position in America rapidly developed and a Radio Relay League was formed, which organised amateurs all over the country. From the start of postwar activities amateur radio took on a new aspect. Technical improvements had been made under war time pressure, notably the vacuum tube, for both receiving and transmitting. The new apparatus was immediately taken into use by amateurs on 200 metre work, and ranges increased greatly.

Tests Across Atlantic

In 1921 the Radio League sent a prominent amateur to Europe with the best available quipment. During tests in England thirty American amateurs were received, and the news stimulated amateurs to still greater efforts. Later tests resulted in 315 stations being logged by European amateurs, and two British and one French station being received in America.

Amateurs now centred their attention on the problem of two-way communication across the Atlantic. Further increases in power were impossible, and it seemed difficult to improve on equipment—the superheterodyne was already in use. It was then suggested that wavelengths below 200 metres should be tried, and successful tests were carried out early in 1923. At the end of this year three stations, using a wavelength of 110 metres carried on two-way communication across the Atlantic for several hours. Other stations followed suit, and found that they too were easily able to transmit across the ocean.

Use of Short Waves

By 1924 commercial companies had realized the possibilities of the 100 metre region and started to rush into it. A series of conferences partitioning off various bands of frequencies for different services were held to avoid chaos in the region. Officials of the American Radio League made provision for the future and claimed bands of 80,40, 20 and even 5 metres. At 40 metres amateurs were successful in communicating with Australia and South Africa. At 20 metres it was possible to communicate from one coast of America to the other, at midday—which was a new advance.

It was found that work with 5 metres is comparatively limited. Amateur experiments in the vicinity of 56 Mc. showed that the band is practically worthless for distance communication, but for short distances up to a hundred miles was found to be ideal, especially with directive antennas. The band was further developed and though much depends on atmospheric conditions, distances of a thousand miles have been covered.

Televiews Projected On Screen

Compares Favourably With Motion Pictures

Reflecting progress in television, and at the same time indicating what may be expected in the future, pictures were projected on a 4½-by-6-foot screen in a recent demonstration conducted by the Radio Corporation of America. Such a system, it was explained, is designed for use in theatres, and not for home installation.

In fact, the new kinescope or screen tube employed in the demonstration fed upon 56,000 volts, as compared with 6,000 or 7,000 used by the screen tube employed in the demonstration on the face of the tube measured 2.4 by 3.2 inches.

The illumination of the screen compared favourably with motion picture screens, while the 441-line definition of the pictures was excellent, especially in close-ups, and at no time were the lines visible to those in the audience, twenty to sixty feet back from the viewing screen. The only defect noticeable was a curved effect which made the keyboard of a piano seem warped and the bow of a violin bent slightly. This was said to be caused by deficiencies in scanning, but could be corrected if the picture were widened. The same effect was observed when a quarter was crowded onto the screen; the faces were longer and narrower than usual.

The machine, described as "a laboratory model, built as an intermediate step in development of apparatus for projection of larger images," is believed to have possibilities for use in clubs, schools and other places where 100 to 150 persons might look in. For home receivers, it seems generally agreed among engineers that on 18-by-24-inch picture would be a satisfactory size. Present home-screens are 9 by 11 inches.

B.B.C. Unit Goes to Sea

To collect material for an actuality picture of wartime life aboard a typical vessel of the British Mercantile marine for a recent programme a B. B. C producer and an engineer, accompanied by a recording car, went to sea aboard a 7,000 ton ship.

On his return home the producer said, "When the captain opened his sealed orders to get his course, he found that he had to make for a small buoy some two hundred miles ahead without a single shore light to help him. The buoy in question marked a channel less than half a mile wide between two extensive minefields. I have tried to stress in the programme the miracle of navigation under these conditions."

Saridon

Saridon always stops any pain in less than 10 minutes and is perfectly safe and harmless

Below are a few of the many testimonials from prominent Doctors recently received:

"Saridon goes straight to the seat of the trouble — and nowhere else. Saridon has no by-effects on stomach, heart or kidneys. It does not induce drowsiness, and thus never interferes with the patient's daily duty." Dr. S.P.K., M.D.

"Your Saridon is a great scientific discovery because it always banishes pain in 10 minutes or quicker and overcomes malaise; Saridon also reduces febrile temperature, but does not affect normal temperature." Dr. K.F.C., M.D.

"With great confidence I prescribe Saridon because Saridon is the quickest-acting non-narcotic analgesic on the market and because Saridon is always reliable and perfectly safe. Dr. L.S.T., M.D.

"Saridon is excellent. It does more than what is claimed for it. Can be used with impunity even in cases of failing heart." Dr. T.M.T., M.D.

"I find that Saridon gives better results than anything that I have used outside of opiates which are often objectionable in many ways and not as satisfactory as your Saridon." Dr. C.T.W., M.D.

"My results with Saridon have been wonderful. I am prescribing it daily and using it often in my own family." Dr. S.H.G., M.D.

Obtainable in envelopes of 2 tablets and boxes of 10 tablets at all chemists.

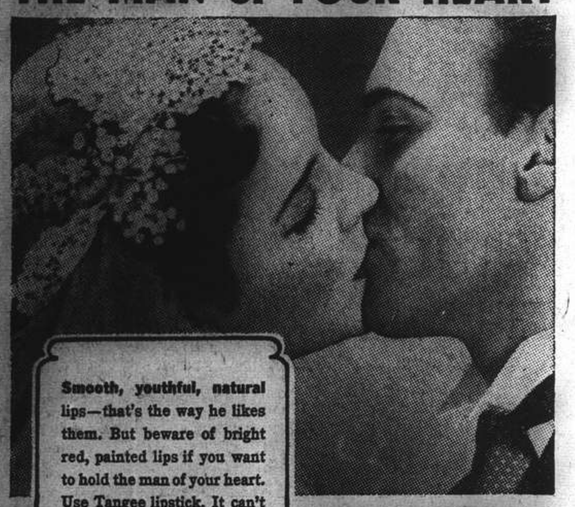
How To Hold THE MAN of YOUR HEART



Smooth, youthful, natural lips—that's the way he likes them. But beware of bright red, painted lips if you want to hold the man of your heart. Use Tangee lipstick. It can't give you that painted look—it isn't paint!

•

Color that is yours alone for Tangee changes on your lips to your very own shade of blush-rose. Smooth it on a second time, see how it makes lips glow to rosy-red. For a still more vivid color use Tangee Theatrical.

•

Cheeks echo lure of lips with Tangee Rouge (Creme or Compact) for it also blends. Tangee Powder gives your skin a fresh soft underglow. For a complexion of natural loveliness he will always adore use Tangee make-up.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

INVASION OF BRITAIN?

Even a month ago the possibility of a Germany invasion of the British Isles was being anxiously canvassed in the Home press, and while some appeared to think that such an invasion was a possibility in the near future, the majority of writers were convinced that no such thing could take place. The invariable lesson of history has been that a serious invasion in the face of an admittedly superior fleet is not a practical proposition. To that the answer is made that aircraft can redress the balance. That is open to very considerable doubt. It is quite true that local superiority in the air kept British naval vessels from penetrating the Skaggerak and the Kattegat, but that was not because the ships could not go in, but because the Admiralty felt that to send ships into those waters in the circumstances would be to run the risk of losing units which might be more urgently required at some other time and in some other place. Obviously to sacrifice important ships on what was after all a sideshow would have been entirely wrong. Apart from that one instance the war so far has shown that German air power has entirely failed to prevent British war vessels using any waters they wished to use. Those ships would undoubtedly be used against any attempted invasion by the enemy and the target they would have would be an immense one. It should be borne in mind when discussing such possibilities that to carry a force of 100,000 men, and that is small enough in all conscience when the number of troops under arms in Britain is twenty times as great, requires about 150 fair sized vessels,—if smaller, more would be required. To send them piecemeal would be to invite piecemeal defeat. To send them in convoy would be to present to the British flotillas of high speed twisting, and turning destroyers, and motor torpedo boats the most vulnerable target it is possible to imagine. When what was done to the German troops convoyed by sea to Norway is remembered, when thousands of German soldiers lost their lives by reason of British submarine action, what would happen to a big convoy, comparatively unescorted by reason of German naval losses can readily be conceived.

The invasion of the British Isles presents problems which are not met in ordinary invasions by land. In the case of the latter millions of mechanized forces can be assembled in readiness, and at the zero hour can make a furious dash into the enemy country with all the speed which modern motors can provide. For the transportation of an invading army by sea very different considerations arise. The element of speed is lost, and to a very large extent the advantage of mechanization is no longer of importance. Tanks, lorries and the like have to be hoisted into a ship, and on arrival at destination,—a most unlikely event, as shown above,—hoisted out, so that, unless the unloading is not to be hopelessly prolonged, it would have to take place where there were adequately handling facilities. That in its turn reduces the number of possible landing places and increases the ease with which they can be defended. Any idea that the invasion of Britain will be just as easy as that by Julius Cæsar, or William the Conqueror can be dismissed off hand, for the invading troops would first have to force a passage across the seas, find suitable places for disembarking the heavy material which modern warfare necessitates, and which would be necessary to meet the mechanized forces of the defenders, and even then be subject to the attentions of the defenders during the days required for unloading, and assembling men and material. Such invasions were possible when there was no sea force first to be dealt with, and when the soldier carried most of his impedimenta upon his back, but the present day concept of conducting war and the heavy material with which it is waged are in themselves factors which operate against any commander seeking to throw large forces overseas against a highly organized island defence. Lest it be thought that these opinions refer only to an attempt to throw German troops across the Channel, it must be pointed out that to strike at any other coast would involve longer sea journeys for the invaders and consequently render their convoys even more vulnerable.

There is also the opinion to be met that Herr Hitler would seek to land at several points simultaneously in the hope that at least some of his men would secure a foothold in Britain. It is a possibility which must be taken into consideration, though it is doubtful whether the enemy has sufficient shipping available to undertake so gigantic a venture. It is to be seen, therefore, that the silver sea which serves Britain in the office of a wall,

Or as a moat defensive to a house,
Against the envy of less happier lands:

is still an overwhelmingly important factor with which any invader will have to deal, and not all the air force which Germany commands will be able to prevent the British Navy from taking full advantage of the defence which it offers. There remains, of course, the parachutist troops. Unless backed by a substantial invading force they have merely an annoyance value, for Germany cannot hope to do much on British soil without landing troops in some relation to the large forces which await the invaders. It would be idle to think for one moment that Herr Hitler will not seek to fulfil his obsession, but the chances are that ultimately he will repeat the famous words of Napoleon as he paced the deck of a British line-of-battleship in 1815: "In all my plans I have been always thwarted by the British Navy." Herr Hitler is no more immune from the same disability, and though he will undoubtedly attempt to set the invasion of Great Britain as a crown to those achievements he has attained already, there is every reason to believe that those factors which led to Napoleon's undoings will lead to his. There is still much reason to believe with Lord Vincent in 1805, at a time when Britain was just as anxious as she is now, who declared in the House of Lords: "I do not say the enemy cannot come. I only say they cannot come by sea."

An Amazing Surrender

While Berlin has claimed that the armistice with France has been signed, and in fact broadcast an electrical transcription of what occurred beween the delegations at the time of the signature, Bordeaux announces that only after Italy's armistice terms are given to the French plenipotentiaries will the French Government reach a final decision on the armistice talks with the Axis Powers. If indeed the armistice was signed at 6.50 p.m. Berlin time on Saturday a very rapid development must have occurred in the situation of which no news has as yet transpired, for in their communiqué issued at Bordeaux at 3.15 p.m. the French Government said:—

> Only after discussions with the latter (Italy) will the French Government be able to reach definite, comprehensive judgment on the double negotiations and take decisions called for by the interests of the country.

Unfortunately the doubt which the diversity of official messages originally created has now been tragically dissipated by the declaration made by Mr. Churchill yesterday that his Majesty's Government had heard with grief and amazement that the terms dictated by Germany have been accepted. The British Prime Minister says "Such terms if accepted by all Frenchmen, would place not only France, but the French Empire entirely at the mercy and power of the German and Italian dictators." The French people would be forced to work against their Ally, while the whole resources of the French Empire and the French Navy would speedily pass into the hands of the enemy for the fulfilment of his purpose. It still remains to be seen whether in fact the French Navy will pass to the enemy, though the revelation of the possibility of its so doing will undoubtedly come as a tremendous surprise. It can only be hoped that the officers and men of the Navy will refuse to obey the orders of the Bordeaux Government which appears to be going against the best interests of its own people. There appears to be a growing feeling on the part of a large section of the French that they should continue the struggle despite what has happened in France. General Michael Degaulle, Chief of Military Operations in M. Reynaud's Cabinet, declares that the French Government had not surrendered to the enemy and that an armistice would be "submission to slavery." That is a matter for Frenchmen to decide for themselves, and whatever they choose to do they will remain firm in the knowledge that they have the fullest sympathy of the Allies in their hour of distress, and the certainty of the closest co-operation should those who can decide to continue their resistance. They may rest assured that their liberation and the restoration of their territorial integrity still remain one of the chief aims of Great Britain in the continuance of the struggle upon which she is determined until final victory is hers. Nothing short of that will satisfy the desires of the whole of the British Empire, and with or without the assistance of the French this war will be waged with all the weapons at the Empire's disposal.

Republican Convention

With the Republican Convention opening at Philadelphia today the United States will commence upon an exciting period lasting right up to the presidential elections which will decide whether the Democrats will continue its office, or whether the country after eight years of the New Deal has tired of it. The deliberations of the platform committee have been made extremely difficult by the developments in Europe, and the Republicans will probably find it difficult to go to the country with as clear cut a platform as they would normally have desired. It is stated that the feel they will be able to capitalize upon the peace sentiment prevailing in the country, and by branding the Democrats as war mongers secure the suffrages of isolationists of all shades of political thought. Probably a great deal will depend upon the personality of the man the Republicans will choose to run as their candidate for the presidency. Several names have from time to time been mentioned, but up to the present no one has emerged who would appear to have sufficiently outstanding characteristics to capture the imagination of the electorate. Apparently there are a dozen or so candidates for nomination as the Republican presidential candidate, and it may be some time before they are whittled down until it becomes a straight issue beween two candidates. Whoever is eventually successful will still not know whether he will have to run against President Roosevelt, who even now manages to keep his intentions wrapped in mystery. Should the President again come forward he will have to encounter the prejudice which exists in the United States against a President having a third term, and the only question which would then seem to arise would be as to whether present developments, and those which may be anticipated before November next would be such as to convince the electorate of the necessity of keeping Mr. Roosevelt in office. Should any such thing occur, the disadvantage under which the President would seem to suffer at present would speedily disappear, and the Republican candidate would in all probability stand very little chance against the personality of Mr. Roosevelt. Probably in no election during the history of the United States have foreign affairs played so important a part in deciding who is to be the next president of the country as they will in this. The German successes in Europe, and the growing menace which it is realized is threatening the United States, and indeed all the Americas, may render considerable assistance to the Democratic cause at the polls, and it might very well be that Herr Hitler may yet make errors which will deprive the Republicans of any advantage they might secure by seeking to dub the Democrats the "War Party."

British Fascist Arrests

The latest newspapers from home carry accounts of the swiftness with which the Government moved in rounding up, and confining Fascist leaders, including Sir Oswald Mosley on May 23. On the previous day an amendment to paragraph 18b of the Defence Regulations was approved by an Order-in-Council, reading as follows:—

> "If the Secretary of State has reasonable cause to believe any person to have been active in the furtherance of any organization" (subject to foreign influence, or control, or to have had associations with persons concerned in the Government of, or sympathies with the system of government of any Power with which his Majesty is at war) "and that it is necessary to exercise control over him, the Secretary of State may make an order against the person directing that he be detained."

Under this provision Sir Oswald Mosley and eight other prominent members of the British Union of Fascists were apprehended seven men being taken to Brixton Prison, and one woman, Mrs. Dacre-Fox, formerly well known as a Suffragette leader, to Holloway Jail. The people so confined are given treatment better than prisoners on remand; are allowed to bring in certain furniture for their cells, and engage the assistance of other prisoners for such things as cleaning up, etc. An even more significant arrest was that of Captain A. R. M. Ramsay, M.P., who was arrested under the terms of the same regulation prior to the amendment. The Secretary of State had, of course, to inform the Speaker of the House of Commons that a member of Parliament had been placed under arrest, and it was a somewhat startled House which heard the Speaker read the letter stating what had taken place. During the discussions which followed Mr. Maxton enquired if any question affecting the privilege of the House was involved in the arrest of an M.P., but was told that he should have taken the matter up immediately the letter had been read, and that the only recourse open to him was to get the Government to afford time for any such discussion. Apart from that the House appears to have taken the matter quite calmly, and as no information has come to hand concerning any debate on the subject in Parliament, it is to be assumed that members on the whole were satisfied that the step which had been taken was the correct one, and that in any event they did not intend to embarrass the Government in any way. It was perhaps inevitable that the question of confinement without trial should have been raised, but the temper of the House showed that it was prepared to agree to the suspension of whatever constitutional rights it might be thought necessary to ensure that fifth column activities in Great Britain should be promptly and effectively squashed.

RARE BIRD IN ZOO

Sacred Quetzal of the Aztecs

In 1937, a collection of quetzal birds arrived at the London Zoo. The quetzal or resplendent trogon belongs to a group of birds (the trogons) which once had a considerably wider distribution than it now enjoys. At one time trogons were found in almost every part of the world (there are fossil records from France), but today they are restricted to Africa and the East and to the tropical parts of Central and South America. Until recently few members of the family had been in captivity beyond such birds as the Cuban trogon, a handsome creature but a very sluggish and rather dull inhabitant of an aviary. No serious effort had ever been made by any zoos to acquire the rarer and more spectacular members of the group, far less to collect specimens of the king of all the trogons, the sacred quetzal bird of the Aztecs and Mayas.

The quetzal has quite a large distribution through Guatemala and other states of Central America. It is a forest living bird, haunting the canopy—for in no other parts of the forest would a full plumaged male be able to fly. This can be realized when the length of the male's tail feathers is considered. When fully developed they are as long as his body, and his total length may be very nearly three feet. The colour of his plumage is almost entirely metallic green, the green colour extending from his halo-like crest to the tip of his tail. On the belly he is of a subtle shade of red. The female is by no means so spectacular, though still handsome. Her plumage is a combination of greens, olives and buffs.

In the summer of 1937 the Honduras expedition set out under the auspices of the Museum of the American Indian in New York. The leader of it was Dr. Wolfgang von Hagen, and it was his determination to secure the first living specimens of quetzals to be exhibited in captivity. After much tedious and unpleasant travelling through the precipitous mountains clad with damp rain-forests that compose most of Honduras, he succeeded in arriving in a district where he was able to find ten quetzal's nests, and keep them under observation. The eggs in each nest were only two in number, and his expedition waited until the birds had hatched their eggs and brought their young nearly to the fledgeling stage.

Youngsters Kept in Good Condition

Dr. von Haggen found it impractical to catch and transport the adult birds. With the aid of chopped hard-boiled egg and wild avocado, and a plentiful supply of insects, he was able to complete the rearing of the youngsters and keep them in good condition for their long journey. Unfortunately, by the time the expedition had descended from the high land to British Honduras it was the hurricane season—when the normal air service is suspended. It became necessary, therefore, to transport them overland through valleys where the normal temperature was up to 95 deg. Fahr., while quetzals normally live in a region where the temperature is only 45 deg. Fahr.

Nevertheless, the birds, by careful treatment, were got through safely and eventually arrived at New York—nine fine examples of a species never before seen alive outside its native haunts. Six of these crossed the Atlantic to London after a period of acclimatization in the gardens of the New York Zoological Society, and of these there survive a splendid male now in a cage by himself in the Bird House and the fine female in the Central Aviary of the same house.

The development of the male and its moults have told ornithologists that the wonderful trailing tail feathers of the male appear in its third season. And visitors to the Bird House can see a bird whose plumage very nearly approximates the final state so graphically illustrated by Gould in his wonderful monograph of the family of trogons.

Such is the history of the first trogons to be shown in captivity. Possibly they are the first ever to have been in captivity since the Aztec and Maya nobles kept them as sacred birds and wore their tail feathers in their hair. There can be no doubt that the quetzal is the finest and most spectacular, and certainly the most exotic, of all the American birds, and one can readily understand why the government of the republic of Guatemala has chosen it for one of its postage stamps.

As they appear to be reasonably common in the inaccessible forests which they inhabit it is to be hoped that further specimens will find their way into Western and European Zoos, though it must be also hoped that modern methods of transport will not mean any form of senseless persecution.

"I THINK you might show a more generous attitude towards refugee cats which are now arriving in the country."

"I will have nothing to do with foreign cats who might belong to the Fifth Column."

"In that case you might show some dignity and restraint. Slapping their faces, spitting and chasing them out of the garden is not the British way."

"It's about time it was."

"What would you think of me if I slapped the faces of people I suspected of belonging to the Fifth Column?"

"I should mind my own business."

"In times like this we must try to help the unfortunate, regardless of personal tastes and prejudices. If refugee cats come here I expect to see you eating and drinking out of the same saucer."

"I'll see them in hell first."

"What do you expect the poor little cats to do then?"

"Go back to where they belong."

"Back to the Germans?"

"If they are Fifth Column cats they will be among friends."

"You must rid your mind of the idea that all foreign cats are Fifth Columnists. They are quite likely to be British cats."

"Not British cats that I know."

"If there ever was a Fifth Column cat I should say it was that flat-eared, square-headed, battle-scarred horror who is the father of your children."

"Insults are the last resort of those without a sound argument. I can only say that I hope the crisis has not affected your nerves."

French Agree to Terms For Armistice With Germany

Cease Fire Order Not To Be Given Until Peace Is Made With Italy

Berlin, June 23.

FRENCH delegates to the Compiegne peace conference signed terms for an armistice at 6.50 p.m. yesterday, the German High Command announced in a communique issued last night.

Colonel General Wilhelm Keitel, Chief of the German High Command, signed the armistice agreement for Germany and General Charles Huntzinger, member of the French High Command, signed for France.

The cease firing order will not be given immediately, however, as the agreement will not become effective until six hours after the French have signed an armistice with Italy.

Military circles here believed the "cease fire" order might be given some time Monday. This forecast was based on the belief in German circles that the French would be able to negotiate an agreement with Italy as rapidly as they had the armistice with Germany.

Text of German Statement

The text of the German High Command announcement is as follows:

"On June 22, at 6.50 o'clock (German summer time), the German and French armistice was signed in the Compiegne forest. Colonel General Keitel, Chief of the High Command, signed for Germany at the order of the Fuehrer, Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces. General Huntzinger signed for France at the order of the French Government.

"Cessation of hostilities is not yet provided for.

"Cessation will take place six hours after the Italian Government will have notified the German High Command of the conclusion of an Italian-French armistice.

"Nothing can yet be announced on the contents of the armistice agreement."

Huntzinger's Appeal

The German Radio broadcast an electrical transcription of the actual signing of the armistice last night, in which General Huntzinger said:

"Before I sign the armistice at the French Government's orders, I would like to make a personal statement. Forced by the fate of arms to give up the fight in which she was engaged with her Allies, France was forced to accept conditions whose severity must be emphasized.

"France expects that future negotiations with Germany will be imbued with a spirit which will enable both great nations to live in peace in the future. I appeal to the soldiers' spirit in the hope the French never have to regret the step we are now taking."

General Keitel replied, "I can only answer, it is honourable for the victor to honour the vanquished."

After signing, an unidentified voice, apparently General Keitel's said, "I ask both delegations to rise and fulfill a duty to our brave enemies. Let us salute those who gave their blood for their country on both sides."—United Press.

To Meet Italians To-morrow

Bordeaux, June 23.

The first contact between the French plenipotentiaries and the Italian delegates is expected to take place to-morrow.

It is believed, however, that two or three days will elapse before a settlement is reached.—Havas.

Foreign Diplomats Meet

Bordeaux, June 23.

Foreign diplomats accredited to the French Government met here at 10.00 a.m. yesterday.

Nothing is known of the purpose of the meeting, although it was reported to have been "very important".

Among those attending were Mgr. Valerio Valeri, the Papal Nuncio, and Senor Jose Lequerica, the Spanish Ambassador, whose part in the armistice negotiations between France and Germany is well-known.—Havas.

Washington Disappointed

Washington, June 23.

New of the signing of the Franco-German armistice was received with disappointment here. Up to the last it had been hoped that France, while abandoning the fight at home, would carry on from colonial territory.—Reuter.

France "To be Totalitarian?"

Rome, June 23.

The "Telegrafo" here yesterday said the Totalitarian Powers have demanded that France join a "European bloc" for the reconstruction of Europe as one of the terms for the conclusion of an armistice.

The Parliamentary regime in France is finished the newspaper declared.—United Press.

Confidence In Petain

Bordeaux, June 23.

All Deputies and Senators present in Bordeaux assembled at the Athenee Theatre yesterday and voted their "unanimous confidence in Marshal Philippe Petain in present circumstances".

France's Colonies Show Spirit

Empire Outposts Refuse To Accept Surrender, Determined to Fight

London, June 23.

While the signature of the Armistice by the French Government ends the organized resistance of French forces at home, there are encouraging signs that a more robust spirit prevails in French Colonial areas, it is stated in authoritative circles in London.

In Syria, General Mittlelhauser, the French Commander-in-Chief in the Levant, has proclaimed the determination of French forces to continue the fight.

In Indo-China, the Governor-General has declared that he will not lower his flag.

In Tunis, the Resident General is firm in his intention to continue the struggle.

In Morocco, Senegal, the Cameroons and Djibouti, assurances of loyal support have been received from military and civil authorities.

The British Government is prepared to make the necessary financial arrangements to enable the French Colonel Empire to play its part. As Mr. Churchill stated, the British aim is the complete restoration of the metropolitan and overseas territory of France.—Reuter.

Tunis Declares Loyalty

Bordeaux, June 23.

"Tunis could never, under any pretext, be dissociated from the French Empire," declares a message from the French population of Tunis to Marshal Philippe Petain.—Reuter.

Reich Aeroplane Plants Raided

Violent Explosions Heard After Attack

London, June 23.

Important German aircraft factories and storage buildings at Bremen, Rothenburg and Gottingen were attacked Friday night by heavy bombers, the Air Ministry news service announces.

There were two violent explosions after hits on the Fock-Wulf Aircraft Works in Bremen. Six supply and ammunition trains between Osnabruck and Bremen were wrecked. Trains at other points, also were destroyed. Several hits were scored on the Krupp Works at Essen.—Reuter.

Targets in Germany Hit

London, June 23.

"During daylight yesterday, the Royal Air Force reconnoitred over north-west Germany and bombed two aerodromes and an oil refinery," states an Air Ministry communique issued last night.

"All machines returned. Bombers last night extended their activities over a wide area in northern and western Germany and attacked military targets of major importance. Two aircraft are missing."—Reuter.

Mistake Causes Alarm in Cairo

Cairo, June 23.

A communique by the Egyptian Ministry of National Defence on yesterday's air-raid alarm in Cairo says: "No enemy aircraft appeared but anti-aircraft batteries opened fire on machines of the Royal Air Force, which had been sent up immediately to meet a possible enemy attack.

"The mistake was quickly discovered and firing ceased immediately. Unfortunately, one casualty was caused by falling anti-aircraft shells."—Reuter.

No Panic in Alexandria

Alexandria, June 23.

All air-raid precaution services worked splendidly during the raids yesterday. Ambulances were on the spot in a few minutes after casualties had been reported.

There were no signs of panic among the population, whose general feeling appears to be indignation at the bombings in view of Italy's promises to Egypt.—Reuter.

Italians Attack Neutral Ships

Bordeaux, June 23.

The Greek steamer Alexandria (4,355 tons) has been unsuccessfully attacked by Italian planes, according to dispatch from Algiers.

The attack took place on Friday afternoon.

During last night, the dispatch adds, the Swedish ship Elgo (1,888 tons) was bombed. One life boat, carrying 25 men, two of whom were seriously wounded, was sunk off the coast of Algiers.—Reuter.

Local French Urge War Be Continued

The French Community in Shanghai gathered at the Police Club at 10 a.m. yesterday to discuss the attitude to be adopted towards the negotiations in France between the French and German Governments. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Amicale des Anciens Combattants, the French World War Veterans' Association, and a resolution was passed to dispatch a telegram to President Lebrun, urging the French Government to continue the struggle. The text of the telegram is as follows:

"The French colony in Shanghai, having full confidence in the destiny of France, express their desire for a close union between the two Allied Empires for the continuation of the struggle which they are ready to support with all their personal and material resources."

France's Fall Deplored by Mr. Churchill

Acceptance of Germany's Terms Amazes Britain, Declares Prime Minister

London, June 23.

"His Majesty's Government heard with grief and amazement that terms dictated by the Germans have been accepted by the French Government at Bordeaux," declared a statement issued today by the Prime Minister, Mr. Winston Churchill.

"They cannot feel that such or similar terms could have been submitted to by any French Government which possessed freedom, independence and constitutional authority.

"Such terms, if accepted by all Frenchmen, would place not only France but the French Empire entirely at the mercy and in the power of the German and Italian dictators. Not only would the French people be held down and forced to work against their ally, not only would the soil of France be used with the approval of the Bordeaux Government as a means of attacking their ally, but the whole resources of the French Empire and French Navy would speedily pass into the hands of the adversary for fulfilment of his purpose.

"His Majesty's Government firmly believe that whatever happens they will be able to carry on the war, wherever it may lead on the seas, in the air and upon land, to a successful conclusion.

"Will Cherish French Cause"

"When Great Britain is victorious she will, in spite of the action of the Bordeaux Government, cherish the cause of the French people, and a British victory in the only possible hope for restoration of the greatness of France and the freedom of its people.

"Brave men from other countries overrun by Nazi invasion are steadfastly fighting in the ranks of freedom. Accordingly his Majesty's Government call upon all Frenchmen outside the power of the enemy to aid them in their task and thereby render its accomplishment more sure and swift.

"They appeal to all Frenchmen, wherever they may be, to aid to the utmost of their strength the forces of liberation, which are enormous and which, faithfully and resolutely used, will assuredly prevail."—Reuter.

Ex-Army Chief Opposes Armistice

London, June 23.

Broadcasting in French, General Michael Degaulle, Chief of Military Operations in the Reynaud Cabinet, said the French Government had not surrendered to the enemy and that an armistice would be "submission to slavery."

"The effect of armistice conditions," he said, "would be that our arms would be surrendered, the territory of France wholly occupied and the French Government would fall under dependence of Germany and Italy.

"There are many Frenchmen who would not accept such conditions. Frenchmen should continue the fight. Everything which can be gathered together in military units, in means to produce armaments should be organized wherever there are any such.

"I undertake this national task in England, I invited leaders, M. Daladier, soldiers, sailors and airmen of the French forces to get in touch with me. I invite the French people to follow me. Long live France, freedom, honour and independence."—Reuter.

Soviets Deny Threats To Reich in Baltic

Concentration of Troops Said Only 18 Divisions

Moscow, June 23.

The number of Soviet divisions in the Baltic countries—Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania—is only 18 or 20, not 100 as stated by some quarters, declared the Moscow Radio last night, broadcasting a statement by the official Tass Agency.

"They are not concentrated along the German frontier, but are distributed among the three Baltic republics; they do not serve to press upon Germany, but provide a guarantee for carrying out the assistance pacts of the Soviet with the three Baltic States."

"The statement emphasized the "good neighbourly relations between the Soviet Union and Germany," and said they could not be disturbed by rumours but were rooted in the common interests of the two countries.—Reuter.

Dominions to Receive 20,000 Children

First Batch of Evacuees Leave England Shortly

London, June 23.

The first selected parties of children to be evacuated to the Dominions will leave within three weeks, Mr. Geoffrey Shakespeare, the Chairman of the Children's Overseas Reception Board, announced during a broadcast.

He added that if an earlier start could be made, it would be done. Thereafter, there would be a steady stream of departures.

Declaring the Dominion Governments had stated their readiness to welcome immediately 20,000 children, Mr. Shakespeare said that the scheme must be limited to the number the Dominions were able to receive, though he was assured that 20,000 might be regarded as a beginning.—Reuter.

Deadlock Among Republicans As Convention Opens Today

No Leading Candidate Likely to Obtain Majority In Nomination for Presidential Candidacy

Philadelphia, June 23.

ON the eve of the Republican national convention, which will be convoked here tomorrow morning, G.O.P. leaders gathered today for hasty conferences in an effort to disentangle the deadlock among the possible Republican presidential candidates, none of whom seem able to command a majority of convention votes.

Convention leaders were confronted with a choice between a political "deal", which would combine the interests of the several opposing Republican groups, or a deadlock, which might be fatal to the party.

Political observers said today it seemed clear that none of the three leading candidates for President, Mr. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, Senator Robert E. Taft, of Ohio, or Indiana's Wendell L. Willkie would be able to command a majority of the convention votes in any early ballot.

None Will Give Way

These observers also believed there was no indication that any of the presidential aspirants would take a second place in a "deal" in order to assure another candidate's quick nomination.

While Republican delegates poured into this historic old city to nominate a presidential candidate and begin their third effort to replace the New Deal, the National Committee yesterday voted to recommend a change of party rules to deny convention representation to districts which fail to cast 1,000 or more votes for a Republican presidential elector or nominee for Congress.

Many of the delegates were convinced that their opponent in the next election would again be President Roosevelt.

Mr. Dewey's Chances Lessened

Earlier this year, New York's Young "racket-busting" District Attorney, Mr. Thomas Dewey, was the overwhelmingly popular choice of Republican voters in most states

European developments during the past two months, however, have forced delegates to alter their opinions somewhat and many now feel that Mr. Dewey may not have enough diplomatic and political experience behind him to defeat a Democratic candidate, especially if that candidate should be President Roosevelt.

In the past two weeks, leading Republican businessmen throughout the nation seemed to have changed their choice of candidates, observers believed. Many former staunch Dewey supporters have switched to the Willkie or Taft camps, it was understood.

President Roosevelt's nomination of two leading Republicans to his Cabinet—Colonel Frank Knox and Colonel Henry Stimson—shocked Republican delegates considerably, but the convention's interest was concentrated on the foreign policy to be presented to the people of the United States during the campaign, and in this one aspect alone, it was believed, the fate of the man to be chosen Republican candidate rested.—United Press.

U.S. Navy Increase Bill Passed

Representatives Agree To Enlargement by 70 Per Cent.

Washington, June 23.

The House of Representatives yesterday unanimously passed the U.S. $4,000,000,000 Navy Bill authorizing the construction of 200 new battleships and increasing the United States navy's strength 70 per cent.

The bill was sent to the Senate, where it will await Congress' return from the Republican Convention, which opens at Philadelphia tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Congress, approved a joint conference report on the U.S.$1,766,917,908 supplemental defence bill, carrying US$1,479,777,147 in direct appropriations and the balance in contract authorizations. The bill was immediately sent to the White House for the President's approval. The passage of this bill brought the 1941 fiscal year defence lay-out to over US$5,000,000,000.

Congress also approved and sent to the White House the U.S.$1,157,711,357 relief bill.

Registration of Aliens

The House of Representatives approved the joint conference report on the proposal requiring the registration of aliens in the United States. The bill was sent to the Senate for approval.

The Senate, meanwhile, approved the US$50,000,000 tax bill designed to help pay for the national defence programme. This was also sent to the White House for the Presidential signature.

Also approved and sent to the White House by the Senate was the bill lifting the statutory limits on the strength of the Army Air Force and allowing the President to prohibit the sale of essential machine tools and military equipment to foreign nations. It also grants the President US$132,000,000 to acquire strategic war materials and allows the Secretary of War to award contracts without competitive bidding.

200 New Ships

The House Naval Affairs committee last Wednesday unanimously approved the recommendation of Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, to increase the strength of the United States Fleet by 70 per cent.

Should the Senate pass the bill the total number of ships in the American Navy will be brought up to 738. The 200 new ships would be completed in the next five to seven years and would give the United States a two-ocean navy larger than the combined British and Japanese fleets of today.

The House Committee, before presenting the unprecedented naval bill to the House yesterday, also amended the act to permit the Navy to build U.S.$25,000,000 worth of mosquito torpedo boats similar to those recently supplied to the Philippines.—United Press.

Greek Ship Said Raided By Italian 'Planes

Algiers, June 23.

The Greek freighter Alexandra was attacked off Algeria yesterday by twenty two Italian planes but was not damaged, the General Information Service announced in an official communique today.

During the night, the Swedish freighter Elgo was bombed by enemy planes. A lifeboat with 25 men in it ran ashore on the coast of Algeria this morning.

In Algeria itself, the communique added, the day was quiet both on land and in the air.—Havas.

Confusion in Europe Seen as Stalin's Chance to Communize Continent

Baltic Countries Already Gone Red; Fertile Field For Propaganda Among Crushed French Workers

New York, June 23.

The establishment of a left wing, pro-Russian Government in Esthonia and movements to create Communist administrations in Latvia and Lithuania, indicate an emergence of Sovietism in Europe which may have serious implications for a prostrate France.

It has long been a popular theory that M. Josef Stalin has hoped for such post-war disorganization, as it provides a fertile field for Communism from the Baltic to the Atlantic. The Baltic is now starting to go Red.

Soon after the outbreak of war, France began an intensive campaign against Communists within the country. Arrests were widespread and included Parliament members suspected of being pacifists working in the interests of Russia, as well as active members of Communist organizations.

The French Government at present negotiating for peace with Germany and Italy is even more strongly anti-Soviet than the Government which initiated the drive against Communists. Marshal Henri Petain, the French Premier, is ultra-conservative and has decided views against Sovietism.

The French military collapse marks the breakdown also of the French battle against Communism and gives the Russian propagandists an opening to stimulate the revival of Communism among the disillusioned and suffering French working classes.—United Press.

Scharnhorst Damaged by R.A.F., Sub.

German Battle Cruiser Torpedoed, Bombed in Flight Down Coast

London, June 23.

"The 26,000-ton German battle cruiser Scharnhorst has received considerable damage through attacks by our naval units and air forces, and a German destroyer has been hit by a torpedo," states a communique issued by the Admiralty and Air Ministry last night.

"One of our submarines sighted the Scharnhorst soon after she had left Trondhjem Fjord to a safe port where could be made repairs sustained when she was hit by heavy bombs during an attack by aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm on June 13. She passed heavily escorted.

"The submarine attacked the Scharnhorst and obtained one hit with a torpedo. As soon as a report of this attack was received, aircraft of the Royal Air Force Coastal Command were dispatched.

"Shortly afterwards, an attack was made by torpedo-bomber aircraft and aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm. No hits were scored on the battle cruiser, but one escorting destroyer was hit by a torpedo. Two of our aircraft failed to return.

Three Direct Hits Scored

"An hour later, a bombing attack was made by aircraft of the R.A.F. Coastal Command. Despite intense opposition, resulting in the loss of three of our aircraft, the bombing attacks were pressed home, and three direct hits with heavy bombs were made on the Scharnhorst. Two enemy fighters were also shot down in flames.

"Units of the Royal Navy were immediately dispatched at high speed to intercept the German force, but with visibility rapidly deteriorating, further contact was not made."

It is authoritatively stated that the Scharnhorst was escorted by destroyers and 50 Messerschmitt fighters. Two R.A.F. bombs struck alongside gun turrets Nos. 1 and 2 and another fell on the stern. The German ships were shadowed by relays of reconnaissance aircraft for nearly nine hours until light became suitable for the bombing attack.

Italian Submarine Taken

"The trawler was patrolling the Gulf of Aden when the periscope of a submerged submarine was sighted. The trawler immediately attacked with depth-charges, bringing the submarine to the surface.

"The submarine engaged the trawler with her entire armament, consisting of torpedoes, two 3.9-inch guns and smaller guns. The trawler replied with her 4-inch gun and a Lewis gun and 4-inch shells.

"The submarine subsequently surrendered and was brought into Aden as a prize.—Reuter.

Italian Attacks Held Off by French

Offensive Repulsed from Mont Blanc to Sea

Bordeaux, June 22.

Italian troops on the southern front attacked at several points between Mont Blanc and the sea today, but were held off by the French defence forces, a French General Staff communique announced this evening.

"During the day," it stated, "the Germans pushed reconnaissance units south of the lower Loire in the direction of Laroche-sur-Yon and Poitiers."—Havas.

Germans Pushing South

Bordeaux, June 23.

"During the day, the Germans pushed reconnaissance units south of the lower Loire, in the direction of Poitiers," states a French communique issued here last night.

"Their thrust in the valley of the Rhone towards the Isere was somewhat strengthened.

"On the southern front, the Italians attacked at several points between Mont Blanc and the sea."—Reuter.

Alsace Forces Said Surrendered

Berlin, June 23.

"The French troops surrounded in Alsace-Lorraine have capitulated after bitter resistance," states a communique issued by the German High Command.

The announcement says altogether 500,000 men have surrendered, among them the commanders of the 3rd, 5th, and 8th Army Corps, besides many other generals.

"Only isolated sections in the Maginot Line in lower Alsace and Lorraine and scattered sections in the Vosges still offer resistance," it was added.—Reuter.

Senate to Question Stimson and Knox

Naval Affairs Committee To Open Investigation

Washington, June 23.

The Senate Naval Affairs Committee announced yesterday that Colonel Frank Knox would be invited to testify at an open hearing on his nomination as Secretary of the Navy in President Roosevelt's bi-partisan cabinet.

The hearing will be held the first day after the contemplated one-week Congressional recess for the Republican national convention.

The Senate Military Affairs Committee has ordered hearings at the same time on the President's nomination of Colonel Henry L. Stimson as Secretary of War.—United Press.

Refugees Pour Into Hongkong As Japanese Advance

Invaders Push Along Railway to Cut Alleged New Supply Route; British Not Worried

Hongkong, June 23.

HONGKONG was tense today as thousands of Chinese refugees fleeing from the Japanese reoccupation of the border region poured into the colony.

Included among the refugees were many welfare workers who have been doing rehabilitation work in the area since the Japanese evacuation less than six months ago. Hundreds of villagers, clutching their meagre belongings and carrying babies on their backs, flowed across the border in a steady stream, with their small children close behind them.

Hongkong police and military units were busy throughout the night in torrential rain, directing an estimated 5,000 refugees to camps. This influx was expected to present a new problem to the newly appointed committee to investigate overcrowded conditions in the Colony and to seek measures to reduce the population because of the danger of epidemics.

Reports of the strength of the Japanese forces active in the border area vary between 800 and 5,000. However, on the basis of previous Japanese reports and the statement of the Japanese military authorities that there were "six detachments" in the area, observers estimated their strength was about 3,000 troops.

Threat to Waichow

Meanwhile, reports indicated the Japanese intended to extend their operations to Waichow. It was believed a landing party was concentrating at Bias Bay for this purpose today.

The Hongkong military spokesman today reiterated that there is no cause for alarm, adding that, despite the Japanese occupation of the region, the border remained quiet.

Many of the refugees were wounded. One died in the Hongkong Hospital last night. The refugees said that in spite of the absence of Chinese resistance, the Japanese fired on villagers indiscriminately.

Alleged New Supply Route

Meanwhile, the latest reports from the border indicated that Japanese forces were moving up the Canton railway to intercept an alleged new supply route, which the Japanese said had been opened during the absence of Japanese troops from the border area. The entire area was policed by Japanese forces last night.

Japanese troop movements from Shumchun to Shataokok along the border and the reported concentration of Japanese transports at Namtau were interpreted by some quarters here as the beginning of Japanese pressure on Britain to close the Burma Road to shipments of war materials to Chungking.

These quarters believed that the Japanese were deliberately carrying out the present border operations as a demonstration against Hongkong They believed the action formed the initial part of a programme which would eventually lead to stern demands for the closure of the Burma highway, on the grounds that the Burma Road is the only remaining "lifeline" to China in the south-west, now that Indo-China has definitely agreed to close its supply route to Chungking.

British Told Beforehand

The British Military spokesman here, however, did not take a very serious view of the Japanese troop concentrations on the border, since he said the Japanese had informed the British authorities of such action in advance.

The Japanese troops were occupying certain areas adjacent to the Colony "for the purpose of mopping up Chinese guerillas," the British military spokesman said.

The spokesman emphasized that there was no cause for alarm.

Reliable reports, however, said that Japanese units had landed at Namtau, north-west of Kowloon, and proceeded overland to Shumchun after a lone Japanese plane had bombed Shumchun yesterday morning, killing one and wounding three Chinese.

The usually well-informed "Ta Kung Pao," quoting border reports, said that some 5,000 Japanese troops had spread along the length of the border from Shumchun to Chataokok and occupied the territory without meeting any resistance.

The same journal reported the concentration of a large number of Japanese transports at Namau.—United Press.

Situation Quiet

Hongkong, June 23.

The situation along the British border remained quiet today, and no change has occurred since yesterday.

The British authorities, however, continue to take precautions to meet all possible eventualities.

At nightfall yesterday, it was estimated that the Japanese had lined up 3,000 troops along the border, and it was believed more would follow.

Despite official reassurances, observers believe the Japanese movements are a prelude to protests regarding the passage of supplies to Chungking via the Burma Road, and a similar situation has arisen in French Indo-China.—Reuter.

Italians Claim British Navy Bombed

Air Bases in Near East Also Attacked

Rome, June 23.

Italian planes increased their activity over the Mediterranean last night, bombing Alexandria, where the British fleet is concentrated, and Bizerta, in Tunisia, the Italian High Command announced today.

Despite heavy anti-aircraft barrages in the vicinity of Alexandria, Italian planes successfully bombed British naval units and air bases there, the communique stated. All of the Italian planes returned from this raid.

Other units of the Italian air force soared over the Mediterranean, attacking Allied shipping and also heavily bombing the port of Bizerta, it was stated.

Fighting on the north African front continued, the communique said, with Italian forces breaking through British tank and armoured car divisions. A large Allied bomber was also shot down over the north African front yesterday, it was claimed.

British planes staged a heavy attack on the town of Trapani, East Africa, damaging scores of private homes and killing 20 persons, the Italian communiqué said. Thirty-eight persons were wounded in the British raid, it was undertood.—United Press.

U.S. Keeping Eye On Japan

Proposed American Cartel May Hit Oriental Trade; No Changes Wanted

Washington, June 23.

In a warring world the attention of the American Government is directed towards many places—towards assisting Britain to win the democracies' fight in the Europe, combatting totalitarian trade attacks from any quarter on the 21 American republics, and towards the threatening situation in the Far East, where reports describe Japanese naval concentrations near Indo-China.

The Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell L. Hull, declined to be drawn into any new statement of American policy in the Far East, but he referred the press to recent pronouncements indicating America's concern that the Pacific status quo should not be upset. He said he had not yet received official advices concerning reported naval concentrations in the Hainan area. It is obvious the administration is concerned over the possible spread of hostilities in the Far East.

While a suggested cartel system for the Americas is directed primarily at trade attacks from European totalitarians, it would apply also to similar trade methods practised from the Orient, and it may not be without significance that the cartel announcement came while Japanese diplomats from American countries are meeting here to discuss trade and other subjects following the visit of Mr. Sotomatsu Kato, former Japanese Ambassador-at-large in China, to most South American countries.

Mr. Kato is leaving here in the next few days for Tokyo.

Much interest has been aroused here by information that Mr. T. V. Soong left Manila by air for the United States two days ago, on what was reported to be an important mission. Chinese circles here are uncommunicative concerning his visit.—Reuter.

Einstein to Become American Citizen

Final Examination Taken By Great Scientists

Trenton, N.J., June 23.

Dr. Albert Einstein, noted German scientist, took his final examination for American citizenship Saturday.

After leaving the courthouse where he took his examination, Dr. Einstein, in one of his rare public utterances, expressed his faith in democracy and said the fate of the human race "is dependent upon America's moral strength."

Dr. Einstein, now world famous for his Theory of Relativity, was forced to flee from Germany in February, 1933, when the Nazis confiscated his property. Three years later he arrived in the United States, where he has resided ever since.—United Press.

Japanese Mission Leaves Italy for Germany

Rome, June 23.

Ambassador Naotake Sato and other members of the Japanese Economic Mission who represented Japan during the recent negotiations for the conclusion of a tripartite trade accord among Italy, Japan and Manchoukuo, left here for Germany yesterday morning after receiving a warm send off by officials of the Italian Government and prominent citizens.

With its work concluded, the Mission formally disbanded on Friday. Mr. Ichizo Kobayashi, Japanese industrial magnate, and other members of the delegation, will return to Japan via Siberia. They will leave here tomorrow.—Domei.

Saigon French Stage Demonstration

Demanding that Great Britain should uphold her solemn oath of union with France, French residents yesterday demonstrated outside the British Consulate-General at Saigon and requested the British Consul-General to grant them permission to enlist for immediate duty with the Allied forces, according to information received in Shanghai last night in the B.B.C. broadcast.

The demonstration, according to the broadcast, continued until the British Consul-General addressed the crowd from the balcony and assured them that their demands would be conveyed to the British Government.

Duke of Windsor to Go Back to England

London, June 23.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor will leave for England from Madrid soon, usually reliable sources reported here today.

If the Duchess returns to England with her husband it will be the first time she has entered the country since her marriage to the Duke of Windsor in the summer of 1937.

The Windsors, meanwhile, arrived in Zaragossa, Spain, yesterday en route to Madrid from France, according to reports from that city.—United Press.

Britain To Be Impregnable Declares Mr. J. L. Garvin

Importance of Sea and Air Power Stressed in Review of Defenses; Overseas Aid Increased

London, June 23.

IMPORTANCE of air power and sea power in the coming struggle for the island fortress of Britain is emphasized in an article in the "Observer," entitled "The Battle of Britain," by Mr. J. L. Garvin.

"We have come to a fight for life," he writes. "It will try us all as by fire and prove our mettle. The choice is between invincible resistance and total conquest by Nazi power.

"In one sense we are alone; in another not so. We have the sympathies of the vast majority of the world. Sea power brings the bulk of its resources. The longer we hold out, the mightier will be the flow of practical aid from the empire overseas and from the United States.

"Meanwhile at home in these islands we have mightier forces by sea, air and land than we ever possessed before. For the defence of Britain they are enhanced, not diminished, by the disasters in the Low Countries and France. This may well be remembered as a providential paradox when the history of these times is told."

"Power Spells Victory"

After referring to Mr. Winston Churchill's speech in the House of Commons and a report from professional advisers that Britain should continue the struggle, Mr. Garvin adds:

"We must first concentrate on the essential condition of that estimate. It is sun clear. Air supremacy added to sea power spells victory. Nothing else spells victory. Unless our air defence is crushed we cannot be beaten during the critical months of endurance. By attaining winged mastery afterwards Britain would be bound to win.

"We have a new B.E.F. at home with experience and temper of the battle. The B.E.F. on its birth soil is an inestimable asset. With them to live or die with us here are Canadian and Anzac divisions. Are not these things enough to stir the blood of every man and woman? Behind them is the vision of gathering hosts—new armies. Behind them again are local defence volunteers.

"While our airmen wage the fight of fights overhead, Britain by the end of the summer will be impregnable to military invasion. But why? —Because the Navy is inseparable from all the rest. Sea power prevents the Germans from bringing their full military strength to bear against any part of our land.

"Britain to Save Herself"

"In Pitt's words Britain has to save herself by her exertions and the world by her example. Today the thought is far more fateful than then."

"There is that in this people which will excel its heritage and cope with the need," states an editorial in the "Sunday Times."

"France has fallen. Her soldiers fought with the utmost gallantry, but she was outgeneralled and outmatched. Great Britain therefore fights alone. We needn't be overdismayed at that. We can look to achieving victory by two chief forms of pressure.

"The first is the blockade. The second is air power. The former is now more rigorous than ever and can be kept so. The latter is the sphere in which we ought, at maximum speed, to press our present advantage until it becomes decisive." —Reuter.

Junks Bombed by Japanese

Quantities of Materials Destroyed in Attack on Shumchun and Coast

Canton, June 23.

"Japanese air units, co-operating with land forces, have bombed scores of junks laden with war materials," declares a Japanese statement, issued here concerning operations around the Leased Territories.

"Large quantities of materials were found at Pingwu railway station, 15 miles north of Shumchun," the statement adds.

There is no information available at present as to whether Japanese forces will remain at Shumchun, after their mopping-up operations against Chinese guerillas.—Reuter.

Shumchun Occupied

At A Japanese Army Air Base, June 23.

Pushing their way eastward over muddy roads, Japanese columns advancing from the Paoan sector yesterday afternoon entered Shumchun, on the southern section of the Canton-Kowloon Railway, near the Hongkong-Chinese border, a reconnaissance flight conducted by Japanese army airmen late yesterday afternoon revealed.

According to report brought back by aerial observers, Japanese columns reached the railway line at 4.30 yesterday afternoon, then entered the town thirty minutes later.

Japanese Army aircraft, meanwhile, carried out extensive bombing and reconnoitring flights over Paoan. Chinese reinforcements moving toward Paoan from Waiyeung and Tamshui were thrown back after being subjected to terrific aerial bombardment.

Reports here said that Chungking positions at Lungkonghu and Pingshanyu, as well as enemy concentrations north of Shumchun were bombed.—Domei.

Japanese Navy Active

Hankow, June 23.

Learning that Chungking troops have started operations near Chihchow, 30 miles downstream from Anking, in central Anhwei, and at Tunglu, 20 miles above Anking, Japanese bluejackets were rushed to Chihchow while naval aircraft bombed and strafed the Chungking forces near Tunglu, the press section of the Japanese fleet in Central China announced this morning.

According to the communiqué, Japanese bluejackets also were landed at Pengtseh and Chiyangchen, 30 miles below Kiukiang, and at Luehshan, 20 miles below Yochow, in northern Kiangsi, on Friday, to rout Chungking troops.

Seventy mines were disposed of on the same day near Kiukiang and Chenglingchi, it was also announced. —Domei.

Japan to Protest To Britain

Canton, June 23.

Japan is protesting to Britain against transportation of materials by way of Burma, a semi-official Japanese source informed Reuter. Japanese troop concentrations at Shumchun are not connected with the forthcoming protest, this source said.—Reuter.

THE CINEMA

"King of the Lumberjacks"

Slim	John Payne
Tina	Gloria Dickson
Dominic	Stanley Fields
Jigger	Joe Sawyer
Joe	Victor Kilian
Dr. Vance	Earl Dwire
Laramie	Herbert Haywood
Gregg	G. Pat Collins
Bartender	John Sheehan
Waiter	Pat. West
Waiter	Nat Carr
Truck Driver	Jack Mower
Cooky	John "Skins" Miller

Although Miss Gloria Dickson and Mr. John Payne are featured in the leading roles in "King of the Lumberjacks", which opened its run at the Grand Theatre yesterday, it is Mr. Stanley Fields who dominates the picture from the beginning to the final fade-out. The story unfolds the usual triangle, with the girl marrying the elderly man only to find herself still in love with her ex-boy friend, who happens to be the other man's friend. Those who love action, and there are very few who don't, will find the picture to be just what they like. It starts with a fight and moves quickly towards a climax that, although anticipated, provided several thrilling moments. Mr. Fields, seen previously in minor roles, turned in a performance worthy of any good character actor in Hollywood. He was particularly good in the pathetic scene where he tells his young friend that he is tired of being loved for his money alone. Miss Dickson looked very pretty in her role, but she has been seen to better effect in other pictures, while Mr. Payne, as the ex-convict turned into a lumberjack, was very sincere. The rest of the cast was well chosen, Mr. Earl Dwire being very sympathetic in the role of the doctor.—I.M.

Paper Victim of Crime Attempt

Suspicious Tins Found In Printing Plant of Chinese Daily

The "Ta Mei Wen Pao," a local Chinese vernacular paper on Avenue Edward VII, was the victim of attempted incendiarism yesterday afternoon. Up to a late hour last night the police of the French Concession were investigating the case, but no arrests had been made, although there was a suspicion that the crime was an "inside job."

The first suspicion that something was wrong occurred when smoke was seen issuing from a roller of a printing press in the plant of the newspaper. In response to a telephone call, members of the Central Station of the French fire brigade visited the scene. An investigation disclosed that a tin container, said to be filled with inflamable matter, had been deposited in the middle of the roller.

The matter was reported to the French police who also visited the newspaper. Two yards away from the printing press they unearthed five other similar tin receptacles, from one of which a fuse protruded.

It was ascertained that the first tin in the roller had set fire to the press. The fire was put out by workmen in the premises before the arrival of the fire brigade. The other tins, which were tied together, were dumped by the workmen into a bucket of water, as it was thought that they contained explosives.

Jewish Emigrants Hospital Opened

Ceremony Draws Large Attendance; Destitute To Be Cared For

The Jewish Refugee Immigrants' Hospital moved into its new quarters at 138 Ward Road yesterday morning after an informal opening ceremony. There was a large attendance despite the vagaries of the weather. The guests were shown round the hospital by its officials.

Among committee members of various refugee organizations in Shanghai present were Mr. M. Speelman, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. J. Abraham, Mrs. Abraham, Capt. and Mrs. A. Herzberg and Mr. Ellis Hayim. Among the guests were Capt. Inuzuka and Dr. Atsuki Sato of the Japanese Naval Landing Party here.

Dr. Otto Freund is the superintendent of the new hospital which will also take care of more than 13,000 indigents many of whom are being provided with meals from a kitchen installed in a building adjacent to the hospital itself. It was learned that $500 received from local subscriptions will only provide one meal a day for the destitutes, and that the association for the relief of Jewish emigrants would have to rely mostly from assistance abroad.

The ceremony was held in the compound of the hospital and was preceded by a short prayer by the Rev. Mendel Brown, who compared the new institution to a shrine where human misery could be lessened and suffering alleviated; where the sick in spirit as well as the physically infirm would find a haven. They would be assisted he said, to brace themselves for the battle of life and instilled with new courage in their difficult quest of employment.

Japanese Thanked

After the guests had concluded their inspection of the new hospital premises Mr. Speelman thanked them for their attendance. He recorded his appreciation of Capt. Inuzuke and other representatives of the Japanese Naval Landing Party here whose presence yesterday, he said, gave renewed proof of the interest and sympathy which the Japanese authorities evinced in their refugee problem.

"Up to a few days ago," he continued, "the hospital was in Whashing Road, in the British Women's Association building, but as the owners required the return of the building, we had only six weeks to make other arrangements. It is impossible for us to send all our patients to the Municipal hospitals, as our means do not allow us to pay the charges."

"We are grateful to our executive director with whom the idea originated, to arrange the wing of the Ward Road Home as a hospital. During the visit which you have just paid to the hospital, you must, no doubt, have been impressed with the work which has been done by our engineer and the director of our camps. To all the persons mentioned, as well as the Medical Board, our thanks are due."

"Everything in this building, all the materials, beds, electric installations were supplied and everything was done by our own people of the Pingliang Road Workshops. We are looking, at present, after about 13,000 emigrants who are, more or less, entirely dependent on us. Our Committee wishes to express the hope that this hospital may prove sufficient, and that it may serve all purposes. We have 40 patients at present and there is room to accommodate up to about 90. I thank you once more for your attendance here."

French Agree to Terms For Armistice With Germany

New Government Rumoured

London, June 23.

If the French Government submits to harsh German and Italian terms for peace a new French Government will be established outside France, some quarters believed here last night.

Unconfirmed reports said the German terms for an armistice include the German-Italian occupation of France until the termination of hostilities with Britain; the cession of Alsace and Lorraine; and the surrender of French war stores, gold, foreign currency reserves and coal supplies, to be delivered to Germany over a fixed period.—United Press.

Church Collection for Red Cross Work

A generous response was made to the morning collection at the ordinary morning service at Holy Trinity Church yesterday morning which was donated to Red Cross work.

The first lesson was read by Mr. P. W. Massey, Chairman of the Cathedral Girls' School, and the second lesson by Mr. A. E. Seddon, Chairman of the Cathedral Boys' School. The cathedral was filled with parents and children from both schools. Appropriate prayers were said by the Rev. P. C. Matthews and the address was delivered by Dean A.C.S. Trivett.

8th Route Army in Kiangsu

Operations Against Provincial Troops in Ever Increasing Vigour; Bandits Assume This Guise

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

From a Kiangsu town, May 29.

THE military situation in this part of the country is more and more developing into a three-cornered struggle. For about a year-and-a-half, the Japanese have been holding the principal cities and towns, while the other towns and villages remained in the hands of the officials and troops connected with the Chungking Government. For some months past, a third party has been gradually gaining more and more power. This third party is generally known as the 8th Route Army, under the direction of Communist organizations in northwest China.

When these 8th Route troops first appeared on the scene, it was supposed that they had come to resist the Japanese, using guerilla tactics similar to those used in their recent wars against Gen. Chiang Kai-shek. In some cases they have harassed the Japanese to a limited extent, but many Chinese are now convinced that their principal purpose is to oust the Kiangsu Provincial troops from the rural districts, and extend the communist influence to this part of China. Some time since, the provincial troops began resisting the advance of the 8th Route Army.

At first the fighting was on a small scale, some skirmishes involving only a few hundred men. The operations have increased in size and intensity. Recently some battles have been fought, reportedly involving a few thousand men, with heavy casualties on both sides. Though exact statistics are not available, it is safe to say that during the month of May, more than half of the fighting in this district has been between these two groups of Chinese. At present, the 8th Route troops seem to be gaining ground. They have taken possession of considerable sections of country, and are gradually forcing the provincial soldiers to withdraw.

The 8th Route Army in northern Kiangsu today probably includes very few men from the original organization in northwest China. It is made up largely of local men, recruited from men in various walks of life, including many bandits. Their activities show the Communist influence in robbing wealthy people, or capturing them and holding them for ransom. Of course such operations are not confined to Communists. No doubt there are many gangs of bandits now roaming the country under the assumed name of 8th Route Army, without any real connection. This name is the fashionable title currently used by the same class of gentlemen of the highway who formerly called themselves guerillas.

Larger Towns Attacked

This part of Kiangsu has a large number of towns surrounded by mud walls. Some of these towns, with populations ranging from 2,000 to 5,000 or more, are so well defended by local guards that they have been able to withstand all attacks by bandits, and have not been looted for several years past. For this reason, wealthy families from other towns have moved into these places for safety, bringing their guns with them. While these newcomers increase the strength of the defence forces, they also increase the richness of the prize, thus rendering the town more attractive to kidnappers and other bandits. Within the past two months, some of these towns have been captured by the 8th Route soldiers, or by their impersonators. Money and other valuables have been taken. The wealthy people have been carried off and held for ransom. Some people report that genuine 8th Route Army men do not oppress the poor citizens, they confine their attention to the wealthy.

Method of Extortion

A common method of extortion is the collection of customs along the country roads. Quantities of goods are being transported by wheelbarrows, or carried by coolies on their shoulders. Any man who owns a gun is entitled to establish himself as a customs official at any point along the road, and force travellers to pay taxes on their goods. Needless to say, such collectors have no legal status whatever, their only authority is armed force. They usually operate in groups, and of course the travellers have no power to resist them. After payment of taxes, the goods are usually allowed to proceed to the next stop.

On some roads, such tax stations are only a few miles apart, there may be several in ten miles. While grain is moved to and from market towns in considerable quantities, salt is perhaps the principal item in long distance transportation by wheelbarrows. On some of the east and west roads, hundreds of barrow loads of salt may pass a given point in one day. The usual tax rate is a few "dimes" for such a load. While this rate may seem reasonable, it becomes burdensome if paid ten or 20 times in a day or two. The coolies who navigate these barrows, toiling day after day on all kinds of roads, may truly be said to earn their salt.

Beggars from this part of the country go to the salt fields near Haichow, and get salt without paying full prices. In some cases, no doubt they resort to begging or stealing. Such persons carry the salt in bags on their backs, with cloth straps over their shoulders. If they sit down to rest, it is difficult to rise again, with the heavy load. Each one carries a stick, with a short cross bar at one end. When the bearer stops to rest, the stick is placed under the bag of salt, with the cross bar at the upper end of the stick. This enables the bearer to get some relief from the weight of the burden, even though he cannot sit down. Men, women, and boys carry salt in this way.

Probably a good many of them are not real beggars, but they use this method of carrying salt in order to avoid paying taxes. For some reason, there is a quaint custom of allowing all such carriers to pass, free of charge. Between tax stations, sometimes one may see barrows loaded with salt, carrying rest sticks on the barrows. Each barrow is accompanied by two or more persons. On approaching a tax station, the people take the salt on their backs and carry it past the extortioners, then load it on the barrows again. Bearing in mind that all such taxes are entirely illegal, this trick seems a rather mild form of smuggling.

A bandit chief named Liu Hou-yeh, who attained a considerable degree of notoriety in this part of Kiang has recently come to the end of his earthly career. About a year ago, he and some 1,500 of his friends joined the Chinese Army and were stationed at Giangiba, southwest of Tsingkiangpu. Liu was appointed head of a ying, 500 men. After being defeated in some encounters there, Liu and hundreds of his bandits returned home. Later, he and some of his followers made arrangements with the Japanese, and were appointed to guard a town near Suining.

The 8th Route Army men caused Liu so much grief in that position that he again retired to the scenes of his childhood. On March 18, soon after midnight, he and his gang launched a fierce attack on his home town, Lingcheng. With the aid of an accomplice on the inside, the attackers entered the south section of the town, but the main part of the town was strongly defended by 300 local guards. The guards occupied a mud wall, and the bandits took advantage of mud houses, so both sides were well protected, and casualties were comparatively light. Two guards and one bandit were killed, and a few were wounded. The fight continued for some hours, and at last the bandits withdrew.

The inhabitants were inclined to resent Liu's attack on his home town, they felt that he had been guilty of a breach of good form. Two or three days later, Liu again joined an army, his third and last venture of this sort. This time he and 40 of his merry men went to an encampment of the 8th Route Army. Details are unobtainable, but apparently there was some difference of opinion, or treachery. Suddenly the 8th Route soldiers massacred Liu and most of his men. It is said that only three of them escaped.

Since these two celebrities have been removed from Lingcheng, the town has been much more quiet and safe than before.

Djibouti, June 23.

Two Italian Caproni bombers were brought down by anti-aircraft fire during air raids on Djibouti, which occurred all day during yesterday.

The crew of one 'plane was taken prisoner, while the occupants of the other were killed.

Very little damage was caused by the raids. Two Europeans were slightly injured.—Reuter.

R.A.F. Bombs Ethiopia

Cairo, June 23.

Royal Air Force planes penetrated Ethiopia Thursday and heavily bombed railway stations and an airdrome at Dire Dawa, the headquarters of the British Army in the Middle East disclosed today.

Although Italian pursuit ships attempted to intercept the British bombers, which raided Dire Dawa twice on Thursday, all of the R.A.F. planes returned to their bases, it was announced.

An Italian tri-motored bomber was shot down over the British lines on the Ethiopian border yesterday and its crew of six were captured, the announcement stated.—United Press.

DUST & HEAT Give You SORE THROATS

DO THIS & STOP them

USE 'ASPRO' AS A GARGLE FOR SORE THROATS

To use 'ASPRO' as a gargle all you have to do is to dissolve three 'ASPRO' tablets in half a glass of water. Then use the liquid as a gargle in the ordinary way. Do not let it stand overnight.

HOT, dusty days—germ-laden winds—dry, parched throats—are frequently the cause of a painful Sore Throat. Infection of the throat can lead to all sorts of complications, so it is most important to banish the Sore Throat as early as possible. 'ASPRO' is the quick and proved safe method of doing this, for 'ASPRO' makes the most effective antiseptic gargle. When three 'ASPRO' tablets are immersed in water, they break up into innumerable particles almost invisible to the eye. When you gargle, these particles cling to the lining of the throat so that their full antiseptic value is released at the seat of the infection and they remain in the throat long enough to give the maximum result. The throat is soothed—the soreness disappears and infection is prevented. Dust, Heat, or Germs cannot harm you if you gargle with 'ASPRO' every day. Buy a Packet To-day!

Recs Refuse to Give Way in Wood Trophy Series

Cricket Club Defeated by 104 Runs Despite Herculean Efforts of Stokes

TENACIOUSLY holding on to the commanding position they had gained on Saturday when they scored 270 in their first innings and then retired four S.C.C. batsmen for 84, the Recreation Club hammered home some destructive blows early yesterday morning greatly to improve their position and by the time mid-afternoon had been reached, the S.C.C. were in a sorry plight. The first leg in the 1940 series of the Wood Trophy came to a finish a few minutes before 7 p.m. and the Recs emerged easy victors, winning more or less as they liked by 104 runs. The Recs amassed 270 and 163 in their innings and retired their age-old rivals for 193 and 136.

Splendid bowling and surprisingly poor or rather insipid batsmanship accounted for the Recs' large win which was well deserved. The visitors all played on their toes throughout the gruelling two days' test and though mistakes were occasionally made in the field, chances on the whole did not cost a lot of runs. The Recs' bowling reached a high standard and never were the home side allowed to get set. Poor stroke play helped in the downfall of the S.C.C. side.

Sinclair and Stokes began the morning's play a little after 11.30 a.m. against Madar and Meston and in the latter's second over Sinclair, rather too hastily made a poor stroke which resulted in his retirement. At 89, Wilson, who had replaced Madar, beat Booth with an excellent delivery. Six wickets down for 89. Orr and Stokes by dint of a useful partnership carried the total to 120 before Meston deceived the former with a slower ball than usual. Stokes should have been held when 35 by Madar at mid-on but the chance was missed.

Fine Stand

F. Marshall and Stokes then made a fine stand that produced no less than 32 valuable runs, but Marshall was never happy against any of the slow bowlers and was finally caught and bowled at 152 for a rather patient 13. At this point 19 runs were still needed by the hosts to avert the follow-on but with some excellent support from Pearson, Stokes banged his way through the tangle and with a couple of fours off Madar the follow-on was prevented. Pearson left at 182, being brilliantly caught by Divecha, while the innings came to a close at 193 when Chadwick was well taken by Wilson off Madar.

Stokes batted for 165 minutes to record an undefeared 78, the chief shots of which were seven fours. Had it not been for his herculean effort the Club would have been in a terrible mess for only he seemed at all happy against any of the attackers. The innings came to a close just before 1 p.m. when lunch was called, the Recs having gained a substantial lead of 77 runs.

The visitors began fairly well in their second innings the first three batsmen all reaching double figures in good time. 74 were on the board for the loss of three wickets when Kermani left, but the picture changed somewhat in the ensuing 40 minutes when Hart-Baker, Smith and Madar were all sent back and the score at this stage read 107 for six wickets. Divecha was as slow as he usually is but it was obvious that he had to stay at this juncture, the lead secured by the Recs not being considered enough in view of the potential batting strength of the S.C.C. XI. After a very patient knock of 17 Stokes retired him at 134 and at the same total Leriou and Shroff were sent back. Meston and Wilson, the last pair, had an enjoyable fifteen minutes together when they smashed the Club bowling all over the field to add 29 valuable runs for the last wicket.

Club Goes In

Needing 241 runs to win and with plenty of time to get them the Club suffered a series of set-backs when they went into bat at 5 p.m. First Sinclair was caught in the slips off his glove from a bumping ball when the board read five while at 12 Fairbairn succumbed for the second time in the game to Wilson by the obstruction route. Thorne never looked comfortable and it came as no surprise when he was sent back at 43 for a rather patient six. At 60 the Club lost their fourth wicket when Francis Marshall, who had been punching the ball hard, was l.b.w. to Divecha. Five runs later the home side's stock took a terrific slump when Stokes, who had done so well in the first innings, made a poor stroke to be caught and bowled by the Wily Pat Madar.

Duckitt and Booth both made brilliant efforts to retrieve the situation and in this respect they did well, but when apparently set for a big score Duckitt, who had played a dour knock was beaten by Kermani for 33 with the total at 114. Orr and F. Marshall left five runs later and the writing was now on the wall Booth, who had played a very steady and patient innings was the next to go, Meston getting him caught at 132 for a most useful 35. This brought together the last pair, Pearson and Chadwick and at 136 Leriou smartly stumped the latter off Kermani to bring the game to a close and allow the Recs to win by 104 runs.

Red Sox Continue Downward Slide

Now in Third Place as Reds Move Up; Lombardi Blasts Out Home Run

New York, June 23.

Cincinnati's hustling Rhinelanders regained second position in the senior loop race by trimming Bill Terry's ambitious Giants, 3-1, at the Polo Grounds yesterday and, although still a few percentage points out of the lead, the Reds are in a win and lose deadlock with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Oddly enough a similar reshuffle took place in the American League, where the Detroit Tigers knocked the Boston Red Sox out of second position by defeating the New York Yankees, while Cleveland was strengthening its grip on the lead by outslugging the Red Sox.

Cincinnati catcher Ernie Lombardi paced the Reds' 10-hit assault on the Giants by knocking a homer which drove in the winning margin. Lombardi scored behind Linus Frey, Cincinnati second baseman.

Cubs Crush Phillies

At Philadelphia, the Chicago Cubs crushed the Phillies in a slugfest 10-2. The Wrigleymen had a big inning in the sixth when Stan Hack, Billy Herman, Jim Gleason and Bill Nicholson connected for successive doubles.

Frankie Frisch's Pittsburgh Pirates paid no respect to the no-hit fame of Tex Carlton, whose pitching was tight enough to match the offerings of Truett Sewell, but Tex delivered homerun balls to Elbert Fletcher, who helped himself to a pair, and to Vince Dimaggio. Brooklyn's defeat kept the three National League leaders within a full game of one another.

In the American League, the Tigers went to bat in the home half of the ninth with the score deadlocked at 2 all, but Frank Higgins connected for the all important single which drove Big Hank Greenberg across the plate with the run that ended the ball game.

Featherstone Wins Yorkshire Cup

London, June 23.

Featherstone defeated Wakefield, 12—9, in the final of the Yorkshire Cup of the Rugby League, played at Bradford yesterday.—Reuter.

Single Run Decides Baseball Game

Second Battalion Defeat Headquarters by 8-7 in Exciting Finish

In the opener of a double-header yesterday at the Race Course the Second Battalion defeated the Headquarters "Orphans" by the close score of eight to seven.

The "Orphans" opened scoring in the first inning when Middleton came in on his double and a single by Lucht. The Second Battalion replied with two runs in the same inning, Mertes and Drew contributing the points. When Bozo Duncan rapped out a single to left, Burch was sent to the showers and Shaul was delegated to the hillock.

By scoring one run in the fifth and three more in the sixth the Second Battalion practically had the game won. Headquarters gradually worked up in the ninth inning to reduce the deficit to one point at 7 to 8. They obtained one run in the stretching canto and three more in the last frame. With the tying run on third and only one out Fugate, pinch-hitting for Wilde, fanned and Malnar grounded out to short to terminate their last minute rally.

Amateurs Win When Lamneck Steals Deciding Run

Shortstop Pilfers Second, Third and Home to Defeat First Battalion by Single Point

WITH the count deadlocked at three all and two down in the eighth inning Bill Lamneck, the versatile shortstop of the Amateurs, executed one of the most daring stunts in local baseball by stealing second, third and home for the deciding run yesterday afternoon at the Race Course when the Gallopers beat the First Battalion, champions of the league, by four to three.

The Gallopers established a slim lead by scoring two runs in the second frame and one in the fourth. The champions succeeded in levelling the count by garnering one point in their half of the eighth frame after they had bagged one marker in the fourth and another in the next inning.

In the dramatic eighth, Bob Biesel fanned but Bill Lamneck singled to right. He pilfered second. Bill Fielden failed to connect and was benched via the strike out route. With very little hope to drive him in, Bill Lamneck purloined third. While John Schaberg had two strikes and three balls called on him, Bill Lamneck made a determined effort to do or die.

A fraction of a second before Lefty Houston delivered the fourth ball to Schaberg, Bill Lamneck was within five yards of the platter. With a lovely slide on the pan Lamneck just managed to beat Baze to score the winning run amid loud applause from his supporters as well as protests from the other camp.

Joe Honeycutt, the twirler for the Amateurs, hurled a fine game, batting in three runs with two singles. Lefty Houston was wild yesterday, walking seven Gallopers and whiffing half a dozen. He allowed only five isolated bingles.

Clean Cut Game

It was a clean cut game from start to the end. The Amateurs netted two runs in the second inning. Lamneck walked and stole. Fielden was given a base on balls. Schaberg lined out to Mudry who made a beautiful catch. Kabbert fanned. Honeycutt came through with a single to right, scoring both Lamneck and Fielden.

In the fourth inning, both sides scored a run. Baze doubled and crossed the plate on Olsen's single. John Schaberg scored for the Amateurs on a walk, a sacrifice by Kabbert and a single by Honeycutt.

In the fifth frame the champions shortened the lead to a difference of one point when Mudry crossed the plate. In the eighth, Beard tied the count at three all on a single, a passed ball and two successive singles from Spence and Houston. The "leathernecks" could have overhauled the lead in both the seventh and eighth with men on third but failed in the pinches.

The Gallopers then obtained their winning run in their half of the eighth when Bill Lamneck made three successive steals, a feat not often seen on the local diamond, to administer the initial defeat to the league champions.

Another Success Won by Recs

Third XI Defeat S.C.C. 3rd Side in Highscoring Cricket Match

In a high-scoring encounter on the Recs ground yesterday afternoon the Recs' 3rd XI defeated the S.C.C. 3rd XI by 49 runs after knocking up 216 for eight wickets and declaring, and then retiring their guests for 167. Play never reached a high standard, the batting, bowling and fielding of both teams with few exceptions being poor. George Madar for the Recs and Underwood for the S.C.C. did well with the bat, the former scoring a fine though rather slow undefeated 68 while the latter recorded 58 in fairly quick time. A feature of the play, however, was the brilliant fielding of Brown for the S.C.C. team. He alone fielded as a cricketer should and the manner in which he quickly gathered the ball at cover and threw down three wickets had to be seen to be believed. It was a tonic to see him fielding and throwing the ball and it will come as no surprise to see him in senior Club sides before many weeks have elapsed.

No less than fifteen bowlers were seen in action during the course of the afternoon but not one of them, with the possible exception of young Barma, impressed greatly.

The Recs won the toss and took the crease. A good start was made and 77 were on the board when three wickets had been lost. A minor collapse was then seen and six partnerships had been broken up for 106. The tail-enders, however, ably supporting George Madar, had other thoughts about the final score and they walloped a tired attack all over the field, Brodd, Barma and Caro reaching 25, 17 and 17 respectively. Pettit declared the innings closed a little after 4.30 p.m. when the total had reached 216 for eight wickets.

After Gambling was run out through a misunderstanding at 13, Smith and Underwood made a fine beginning for the S.C.C. XI, adding 78 for the second wicket before the former was deceived by Pate. Winney and Brown left for small additions while half the side was out for 111 when Underwood who had batted well for his 58 was beaten by Brodd. Hodgman and Ward then set about the attack and scored quickly but both left at 137. The tail failed to wag to any extent and the end came at 7.15 p.m. with the side all out for 167, just 49 runs short of the Recs score.

Recs Continue Triumphant Lawn Bowls March

Hongkew Golf Club Soundly Defeated; S.L.B.C. "Reds" Now in Second Position

THE Shanghai Recreation Club continued their triumphant march in the senior division of the Lawn Bowls League yesterday afternoon when they defeated their nearest rivals, the Hongkew Golf Club, by the overwhelming margin of 5-0. The Recs played on their own greens and were thoroughly at home to score the most convincing victory of the day, ousting their opponents by no less than 27 woods. Their runaway win yesterday has given the Recs a splendid percentage of 87.50. On the other hand, the Hongkew Golf Club went down to their first defeat in the series, the result of which was that they slipped into third place. The S.L.B.C. "Reds" replaced the H.G.C. in the runner-up position as they reeled off their third successive triumph yesterday at the expense of the Clube Lusitano "Reds" who succumbed by 4-1.

No Ignominy

The Hongkew Golf Club were defeated with a vengeance yesterday by the Recs who accounted for the initial set-back for the H.G.C. who, up to the present, had scored two successes and drawn another. There was no ignominy attached to the H.G.C.'s loss, however, as the Recs have been playing formidable lawn bowls during the past few weeks.

"Reds" Win

The "Reds" teams of the S.L.B.C. and the Clube Lusitano were engaged in a thrilling struggle with the former side just managing to gain the better of their adversaries by 62 shots to 59. By virtue of having emerged victorious on two rinks, the S.L.B.C. team earned four points to remain the only undefeated team in the first division outside of the Recs.

Closest Match of All

There probably has been no closer match this season than the one that was witnessed at the Clube Lusitano yesterday and it is doubtful whether any other club has been so unfortunate as the Yangtszepoo Bowling Club for the latter side dropped all five points to the Clube despite the stern battle that they put up. The Y.B.C. players lost two rinks by one shot and the remaining one by another two woods. The final total saw the Yangtszepoo bowlers trailing by only 60-64.

Finney Leads Batting Averages in U.S.

Mize Has Eighteen Home Runs, Foxx Seventeen

New York, June 23.

Lou Finney, rejuvenated Red Sox outfielder, took the lead in the major league batting averages compiled up to Friday of last week. Finney's average of .363 just barely topped the .362 average of Harry Danning, slugging New York Giants' catcher. Barney McCosky, young second-year star of the Detroit Tigers was in third place with .361.

A feature of the American League batting marks was that the whole Boston outfield of Finney, Cramer and Williams occupied three of the first six places.

Johnny Mize, who has been called the "best left-handed hitter in baseball" continued to lead the home run parade with 18 four base blows to his credit. The veteran Red Sox first baseman, Jimmy Foxx, followed close behind with 17.

Ted Williams led in runs scored with 50, while his outfield teammate, Roger Cramer, paced the hitsmiths by compiling 79 hits.

Detailed hitting averages of the league leaders follow.

1st Tied Cricket Match in Years

Parsees Do Extremely Well To Hold Opposing Eleven In Check

On the Parsee C.C. ground at the Race Course yesterday afternoon a Parsee XI tied with the Embarkation Staff Office, both teams scoring 78 runs when the last wicket had fallen. This is the first tied game that has been played in Shanghai for many years and that the home side did extraordinarily well may be observed by the fact that the Army team contained many well known local league cricketers.

Neither side could make much of the opposing attack, but Cook of the visitors returned the best analysis of the afternoon, his six wickets secured in five overs costing only twelve runs. The Parsees took first knock and seemed set for a big score, 35 being recorded for the first wicket. The second and third wickets fell at 45 and 47, Mehta doing well with a nicely compiled 28, but thereafter a rot set in and wickets tumbled like ninepins, Cook doing most of the damage. The last partnership was dissolved at 78 and it then appeared that the Embarkation Staff Office XI would easily surpass this total.

Viccajee, however, caused the soldiers some anxious moments when the latter went in to bat, Jones of the Seaforth Highlanders and Eatwell of the East Surreys—the latter recently scored 156 in a League match against the Police—being sent back for five and a "duck" respectively with only 11 on the board.

Kenwood, French and Crew helped the score along well and when the fifth wicket fell the total was 63, enough to make one think that the Parsees would be beaten. Some excellent bowling and fielding in the latter part of the innings, however, resulted in one wicket falling after another the tenth partnership being broken up at 78 when the game was a tie.

Charna was the most successful bowler, his five victims being claimed at a fraction over six runs apiece.

Baccalaureate Service For Graduates

Christian Colleges Meet In Joint Ceremony

The Associated Christian Colleges held a joint baccalaureate service at the Moore Memorial Church yesterday. Colleges represented were Ginling College—Shanghai Unit, Women's Christian Medical College, Hangchow Christian College, Soochow University, University of Shanghai and St. John's University.

A prelude played by a string quartet and organ commenced the service, and shortly after a procession of graduates of the various colleges entered the church. A hymn and prayer followed this, the prayer being offered by Dr. F. L. Hawks Pott, President of St. John's University. The chorus of the Associated Colleges rendered an anthem "How Beautiful," under the leadership of S. E. Cheng. The offertory, which will be used for European Student Relief, was followed by another anthem, "The Lord is my Light." Dr. W. Y. Chen preached a sermon on "Holy Ground", and the service concluded with a prayer for the graduates and the Benediction by Dr. R. J. McMullen.

In addition to the chairman, T. K. Van, there were on the platform the following, W. Y. Chen, Mrs. Chen Hwang Li-ming, Dr. Josephine Lawney, Dr. Baen E. Lee, Dr. R. J. McMullen, Dr. Y. C. Yang, Dr. F. L. Hawks Pott and Dr. Y. C. Hsu.

American Held Up by Chinese Robbers

An American seaman was victimized by seven or eight Chinese when his rickshaw was stopped in East Yuhang Road near Dixwell Road at a quarter to one yesterday morning. The bandits over-powered him and took away $130 in notes. An alarm was given, but the Chinese got away in the darkness.

A humourous note was struck in another hold-up in Great Western Road at 11.30 p.m. on Saturday. A Chinese, dressed in foreign style clothes, was stopped by bandits who made him undress. After taking his clothes and $4, the bandits decamped.

Flour Mill Machinery Gutted in Big Fire

Blaze Extinguished After Three Hours' Battle

The Foo Sing Flour Mill in Lane 1095, House 101, Chengtu Road, was the scene of a big fire when flames broke out in the motor room on the eighth floor at 9.27 p.m. on Saturday.

The flames spread quickly to other floors and by the time fire engines from the Sinza station arrived at the place, three top floors were on fire. Additional engines from Ichang Road and Central stations were called out, while an emergency tender was also sent. The firefighters fought over an hour to check the flames from spreading on to other floors and by 10.30 p.m. had the flames under control.

The conflagration was finally put out at eighteen minutes past one o'clock in the morning. Fortunately, due to the late hour, no one was on the premises and there were no injured.

Although the exact amount of damage caused has not been ascertained yet, it is believed that the loss will be considerable. The whole eighth floor and the machinery were very badly damaged, as well as several grain chutes. The roof of the building was almost completely gutted by the fire.

Another fire was reported at 3.34 a.m. yesterday, the Hongkew station responding to the call when an iron foundry at Lane 867/21 East Yuhang Road caught fire. The firemen had the flames under control in a few minutes and slight damage was done to the kitchen.

Fourth Marines Church

A record crowd, breaking all attendances heretofore, heard Regimental Chaplain R. R. Marken in conducting the Fourth Marines Services held at the Grand Theatre yesterday morning, at ten o'clock. In addressing his audience, Chaplain Marken preached on the theme, "The Light That Must Not Be Dimmed." In opening the regular weekly service, the Regimental Band under the direction of Master Technical Sergeant L. E. Giffin played the prelude "Jesus, Thou Divine Companion" by Jeune, and for the Offertory, "Slumler Sweetly" by Beaumont.

Four members of the Regimental Band, Corporal Brent, Private First Class Lawwon, Privates Leber and Sanville, offered as a special selection for the services, the number "Eventide" by Watts.

The March "National Emblem" by Bagley opened the regular Sunday concert, followed by the Overture "Semiramide" by Rossini. Master Technical Sergeant Giffin and his band featured the Regimental Concert with the number "Blossom Time," a request number, (adapted from melodies of Franz Schubert and Heinrich Berte) by Sigmund Romberg.

The Marines Hymn and the American National Anthem concluded this excellent programme of worship and concert.

Stimson Selection Angers Japanese

Worse Relations with U.S. Predicted; Opposition to Manchurian War Recalled

Tokyo, June 23.

The Japanese press here this morning unanimously attacked the nomination of Colonel Henry Stimson as United States Secretary of War by President Roosevelt, predicting a worsening of Japanese-American relations as a result.

"The selection of a man who has shown himself the avowed enemy of Japanese policy in the Far East is a poor way to begin a revision of policy toward Europe," the "Japan Times" asserted.

The "Nichi Nichi Shimbun," recalling Col. Stimson's attitude toward the Japanese occupation of Manchuria in 1931, when he was United States Secretary of State, said the President's choice "makes America's attitude clear once and for all."

The "Hochi Shimbun" interpreted the appointment of Col. Stimson as an indication that the United States were preparing to initiate a policy of "armed diplomacy" against Japan.

The "Miyako Shimbun," commenting on reported indications of an American desire for a Japanese-American rapprochement, said the United States, if it sincerely wishes better relations with Japan, should "manifest its sincerity by concluding a commercial treaty with Japan and abandoning its pro-Chiang Kai-shek policy."—United Press.

Tientsin Questions Not Fully Settled

Chinese Watching to See Agreement Carried Out

Peiping, June 23.

Questions of the British and French Concessions at Tientsin are not yet fully settled, and the North China Political Affairs Commission will keep close watch over the British and French authorities to observe whether they fully carry out the terms embodied in the agreement with the Japanese, according to a statement by the Director of the Information Bureau of the North China Commission.

"It is too early to say that various questions have been fundamentally settled. Settlement of this question is comparatively insignificant when compared with whether Great Britain and France will faithfully carry out the agreement," he said.—Reuter.

Japanese Inspectors For Indo-China

Examiners to Be Stationed In Hanoi, Other Centres

Tokyo, June 22.

The Information Bureau of the Foreign Office announced this evening that the French Ambassador, Mr. Charles Arsene-Henry, visited the Foreign Office at the invitation of Mr. Masayuki Tani, Japanese Foreign Vice-Minister, to discuss the composition of and date for the despatch of the party of Japanese inspectors who will be sent to French Indo-China to carry out an inspection of the conditions there.

The two diplomats also discussed details in connection with the prohibition of the transportation of war materials through French Indo-China. Meanwhile, Japanese army, navy and Foreign Office officials gathered this afternoon at the Army Section of Imperial General Headquarters to discuss concrete measures to carry out the Franco-Japanese agreement.

According to well-informed sources, it was decided that Japanese examiners should be sent to French Indo-China immediately. It was further decided that the examiners shall be picked from members of the Japanese Foreign Office, as well as military experts.

Examination Points

Further decision, it was reported, was reached to place approximately 20 persons at a single examination point and to station them permanently.

Besides Hanoi, Haiphong, Laokai and Liangshan, several other places will be designated for the stationing of examiners. These places will be decided on by the army and navy authorities acting jointly, it was stated.

Commodities to be forbidden will also be decided on later, it was stated. It was pointed out, of course, that arms and ammunition, iron and steel building materials, railway materials, and raw cotton are bound to be banned.

It is understood that the strict examination of all goods transported by air also is under contemplation by the Japanese authorities.—Domei.

SHIPPING NEWS

Vessels Arriving To-day

The following particulars in connection with vessels due to arrive today are based upon information available yesterday evening.

From KOBE: Taiyo Maru, due 3 p.m. Wayside Wharf.

From KEELUNG: Hukuken Maru, T.K.K. Wharf.

Due at Future Dates

All vessels are listed under their terminal port. The first date is that of the ship's departure from that port, and the second is the date she is due to arrive in Shanghai. Where a ship's name is duplicated it indicates the port of call last visited.

On account of the present international situation there is considerable interference with movements of ships, especially those from Europe. In cases where it is definitely known that the vessel is not running to schedule the Shanghai arrival date is omitted.

FROM DAY TO DAY

MR. George H. Lynott, Vice-President of the American Bank Note Co., returned to Shanghai with Mrs. Lynott on Saturday in ss. President Pierce.

WORKERS at the B.S.A. factory at Redditch, England, have decided that the bonus they earned by working on Whit Monday and Tuesday is to be handed over for the purchase of comforts for wounded soldiers undergoing treatment. So far 300 men have joined the scheme, and the sum raised is well over £300.

HARD pressed by advancing German troops and planes attacking a French seaport town, a British officer and 12 men ran to the beach and swam more than a quarter of a mile to a drifting boat, which contained a dead Dutchman who had been machine-gunned. They lay flat on the bottom of the craft, whose motor was out of action, and, scantily clad and without food, drifted for twenty-four hours until they were sighted by a hospital ship and taken to a South Coast port.

THE former French Embassy building, on Sanpai Road, Nanking, was completely destroyed in a fire that started at 6.45 o'clock on Saturday evening, according to a special dispatch from Nanking appearing in yesterday morning's edition of the "Shanghai Mainichi." The fire, the cause of which was not known, raged for nearly two hours before Japanese and Chinese fire brigades managed to bring it under control. Three Chinese caretakers who were in the building at the time the fire broke out are now under examination, it was reported.

THE report, happily untrue, that he had lost his life in Norway adds yet another to the many adventures of that intrepid young man, Capt. Peter Fleming, traveller and author. Having inherited a fortune from his grandfather—his father, Major Valentine Fleming M.P., was killed in the last war—he has been able to wander over the world's surface as his fancy led. It led him to Guatemala, where he climbed mountains; to Brazil, where he hunted for Col. Fawcett; to Manchuria, where he came too close to the China-Japanese War, and from China to India, where he had adventures with bandits. His wife is Miss Celia Johnson, the actress, and they have one son.

ONE of our most brilliant airmen, Wing-Commander J. W. Gillan, is to be married. His bride will be Miss Claire Luce, the American-born actress who came to London 12 years ago. "Gillo," as the R.A.F. knows him, carried everything before him at Cranwell, and his almost reckless courage became a by-word. It was he who made the famous flight from Edinburgh to London in 48 minutes two years ago. Only a few months earlier he had a serious crash when flying with a friend. The controls failed, and the 'plane came down in a tree. Both men were badly injured, but recovered. Until last year "Gillo" commanded our best fighter squadron. Now he is at the Air Ministry.

As part of their plan to spread panic and terror, it is reported that the Germans have been using howling and whistling apparatuses on bombers and bombs.

AMONG the things of which there will be a shortage in Denmark are cigars. The Germans, famished for tobacco, have fallen on the cigars, but are very disgruntled by their mildness and small size. These are accounted for by the fact that Danish women are, within limits, cigar smokers.

MR. J. R. B. Branson, who has been urging us all to eat grass, is a younger brother of Sir George Branson, the retired judge, and is himself a retired lawyer living in Battersea, London. He claims that during the past three years he has gradually changed his entire diet to grass, certain flowers, and the leaves of dandelions, and that he is all the better for it. Although he is 67 he goes for a long run every morning, and he recently cycled 156 miles in two days. He says that his food bill amounts to only 2s. a week!

SIR Archibald and Lady Sinclair, who have a remote castle in Caithness, possess two sons and two daughters. They are popular, and there are those who predict that the fourth Sinclair baronet will rise to heights. Sir Archibald Sinclair is a good-looking, austere-looking man who might be mistaken for a cleric of one of the Scottish Presbyterian churches. By contrast, he married into one of the gayest of Scottish families, his wife being a niece of the late Earl of Rosslyn, a peer who turned actor, editor, soldier, and a few other things.

MAJOR-General Bernard C. T. Paget, who carried out the withdrawal of Allied troops from the Trondheim area, is a striking example of the military spirit in families closely connected to the Church. Both his father and mother had distinguished Church connections, his father being a Bishop, his mother the daughter of a Dean. It will be recalled that Dr. Chavasse, the late Bishop of Liverpool, had distinguished soldier sons in the last war. Gen. Paget is a man of quiet, deliberative thought, and is always interested in solving problems of difficult situations, as students at the Staff College in recent months will recall.

KIRUNA is the little known town in Swedish Lapland which works the richest ironfield in the world, and which exports millions of tons of ore every year through Narvik and Lulea. Forty years ago it hardly existed. Then some British capitalists built a railway to the spot, and it expanded rapidly. But the demand for this particular iron fell off, and the Swedish Government bought the railway at a bargain price. What a pity now that we sold it! The town is surrounded by hills which are more than 75 per cent. solid iron. Over 100 million tons have been exported since 1900, yet Swedish experts say there is enough on the surface alone to last for more than 100 years longer at the present rate of supply. And the deposits extend at least 1,000 ft. below ground!

New York Exchange Market

New York, June 22.

A remarkable advance by sterling was witnessed on the New York Foreign Exchange Market today. The rise was said to have been influenced by the following factors:

1. An immediate demand created by the ruling that importers may have to pay for goods bought prior to June 8 with "free" sterling;

2. The very scarce supplies; and,

3. Indications that London might not pursue aggressively the recently announced policy to drive "free" sterling from the market.

The, crossrate today opened at 3.61 and closed at 3.73½, compared with yesterday's final level of 3.59¾. The high for the day was 3.74¼ and the low 3.60.—Reuter.

Bombay Cotton Market

Bombay, June 22.

Nervous and narrow conditions prevailed in the Bombay cotton market during the past week, with the thinness prevailing a marked feature. Spots were rather better on a marked increase in permits for yen countries, which led to renewed Far Eastern buying, whilst domestic mills were rather better buyers.

Moderate rainfall in most of the cotton tracts caused a declined prices, which might restrain acreage.

War news, which was formerly construed bullishly, is now precisely the reverse, and this may be accounted principally by restrictions placed on India's export outlets.

Meanwhile, the shrinkage of the open market position is rather marked, and the opinion prevails that the completion of July/August liquidation may be seen first.—Reuter

Saturday's Closing Quotations

New York, June 22.

The cotton market early advanced on trade and spot houses buying and shorts covering. Later, prices further strengthened, especially near months, on some speculative buying and persistent covering. Finally, the market closed steady on the firmness of spots, with quotations ranging from 1 point down to 10 points up.

Prices in the rubber market today opened higher on more factory interest, dealer buying and covering by shorts. Towards the close, profit-taking shaved much of the earlier gains. At the close, gains of 4 to 10 points were recorded.

Wheat futures in Chicago today advanced on the absence of rains in the drought sections, more outside interest, some mill buying and a firm market. At the final bell, gains of 1½ to 1¾ cents were registered.

New York Stock Exchange Slack

New York, June 23.

Trading was slack on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday with both war stocks and non-war stocks dull. Traders were still awaiting the announcement of German peace terms.

There was a fair demand at the close for utilities and steels. Autos and coppers were steady. Chrysler came back a point from early lows. —United Press.

London Money Market

London, June 22.

Conditions on the London money market were slightly more stringent during the latter part of the week, owing to the approach of half-yearly settlements.

£65,000,000 worth of Treasury Bill offers were fully allotted at £1.0.4.97d., which was fractionally lower.

The market syndicate received 60 per cent. of its applications.

Increased pay-rolls, together with the continued strengthening of banks till-money were responsible for the fresh record note circulation at £589,100,000.—Reuter

Tonie Noviska, the noted Polish ballerina, will be screen-tested by David Loew and Albert Lewin for the leading role in their forthcoming picturization of Erich Maria Remarque's novel, "Flotsam." Miss Noviska was selected by the Loew-Lewin organization as a strong possibility for the role since, in addition to her stage experience, she has played the role in real life as it is portrayed in "Flotsam."

New York Stocks

Saturday's Closing Quotations

New York, June 22.

Stock prices on Wall Street today finished quietly firm, with gains ranging from fractions to 1 point recorded.

Operators continued to be timid and cautious, pending the clarification of existing uncertainties, especially the German armistice terms. Weekend considerations additionally made for a quiet market.

The turnover today amounted to 200,000 shares.—Reuter.

Dow-Jones Summary

By Courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

Trading on the Stock Exchange dwindled in volume far below that prevailing early in the World War days. Prices moved within a very narrow range today, with the Street awaiting the armistice terms which financial circles believe may give a clue to the duration of the war. Business news revealed a higher steel operating rate in several leading districts; forecast of higher car loadings for the third quarter; and, a new high for operations in the paper industry. "War babies" marked time, whilst non-war stocks were equally dormant. Steels, automobiles, utilities and coppers ruled steady; oils presented a mixed appearance; few specials swung out fractionally of the current area on a few transactions; and, some preferred issues firmed up in late dealings.

Stocks:—Continued their meaningless drift, indicating that traders were interested in little beside the nature of the peace terms. Country-wide store sales for the week ended June 15 were 9 per cent. ahead of last year. The Times Index of business activity was placed at 102.4, against the revised figure of 99.3 for the previous week and 90.6 for the corresponding period of the previous year.

EARNINGS

Stock	Period	1940	1939
Spicer Manufacturing	Qr. 31/5	$1.41	$1.83

Cotton:—Ruled steady. Occasional price-fixing of nearbys absorbed light offerings. Evening-up of the July position was the main feature today. The market looks as if it will move lower.

Wheat:—There was a light demand in anticipation of Government purchase of flour to be announced on Monday. The trade expects that this will amount to about 500,600 barrels. Reports of a heat wave in the Spring wheat belt was overlooked as market continued to be well liquidated.

Corn:—Trading was quiet and featureless. Little pressure is seen, unless country offerings loosen up considerably.

Rubber:—Factory demand is limited, but the undertone was firm. Some apprehension has been caused over the Japanese movement in regard to French Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies, while nervousness over war risk insurance was also noticeable.

Hides:—Spots ruled firm. Sales of June Light Cows at 12-cents were reported. The favourable statistical position, approach of the seasonal peak of shoe production and demand from the Government Rearmament Programme are attracting attention.
